ARBITRATION BOARD WAS READY TO MEET STRIKERS IN A BODY, SAYS EDW. J. BARRY

Edward J. Barry, member of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, today made the following comment on Robert Luce's refusal to allow several hundred Elevated car strikers to enter the State House after they had been invited to attend a hearing.

"EVERY MEMBER OF THE BOARD, IN JOINT CONFERENCE WITH LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR LUCE, THE STRIKERS AND THEIR COUNSEL, TOLD HIM (LUCE) THAT THE BOARD WAS WILLING TO RECEIVE THE STRIKERS IN A BODY."

ANDREW QUITS THE TREASURY

WASHINGTON, uly 3.—Dr. A. Piatt Andrew, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of coinage and the currency, today tendered his resignation to President Taft. A scandal of large proportions in administrative circles is feared. It is said that in his letter of resignation he makes a severe attack upon his superior officer, Franklin MacVeagh, and denounces the methods of the Treasury Department as Secretary MacVeagh conducts it. President Taft says Andrew's resignation was requested for refusing to obey orders of his superior, Secretary MacVeagh.

Harsh and unmerited criticism from Secretary MacVeagh and from outside sources and an entire lack of co-operation are given by Secretary Andrew as reason for his resignation. He says that some of the actions of MacVeagh would seem inexplicable to a man of normal mind. Secretary Andrew's letter follows in part:

"For a long time the transaction of much of the treasury's business has been at a standstill and an outbreak of some sort has been imminent. Many able and energetic treasury officials have had to bear the brunt of harsh criticism from people outside, who have suffered interminable delays in their business with the treasury for which the secretary alone was responsible and at the same time they have had to submit to criticism even more harsh and more undeserved from Mr. MacVeagh himself, whenever he discovered that they had ventured to act upon some matter of minor importance without awaiting his decision."

President Taft accepted Dr. Andrew's resignation as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury within an hour after his letter was received at the White House. The resignation was accepted "in view of Mr. Andrew's failure to obey orders given him by the Secretary of the Treasury," the White House announced. The President will confer with Secretary McVeagh, who is out of town, before appointing Andrew's successor.

As son as he received word of Assistant Secretary Andrew's resignation Representative Co of Ohio introduced a joint resolution appointing a committee of Congress to investigate "The state of administrative affairs in the Treasury Department."

Andrew comes of a wealthy Massachusetts family. He has a Summer home near Gloucester. Following his graduation from Harvard he was an assistant professor of economics at the university. Before becoming assistant Secretary of the Treasury he was in charge of the United States Mint.

MRS. DECKER, WHO IS SERIOUSLY ILL IN SAN FRANCISCO

MRS. SARAH P. DECKER

SAN FRANCISCO, July 3.—A resolution favoring suffrage has been prepared in secret and will be presented to the committee on resolutions of the General Federation of Women's Clubs now in convention here. This afternoon Mrs. Frances Squire Potter of Chicago conducts the conference of the literature department. Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, a former president of the federation, is seriously ill in a hospital here. She was stricken ill suddenly last night and taken to a sanitarium.

TRAWLER FIREMEN STRIKE; COMPANY MANAGER LAUGHS

Twelve firemen employed on the Swell, Foam, Spray and Ripple, steam trawlers owned by the Bay State Fishing Company, today went on strike in sympathy with the demands of the Atlantic Coast Marine Firemen's Union for more pay and better working conditions.

It is expected that the firemen on the Surf and Crest, now fishing on George's Bank, will join the strike upon their return.

Manager Oddie of the company laughed at the strike today.

"These men have a soft job," he said. "They shovel about ten tons of coal apiece in a week. A fireman on a big coastwise steamer shovels about thirty tons a day. You'll see them trooping back on the morning after the Fourth to get back their jobs."

AMERICAN WIFE WINS SUIT IN ROME

ROME, July 3.—Regarding the court's decree as outrageous, Prince Ludovico Kospigliosi and the Princess, who was formerly Mildred Hazeltine, daughter of a Philadelphia artist, appealed for a modification of their divorce edict. This has just been decided and on the terms of it a legal separation is granted and the children are intrusted to the mother's care.

Rospigliosi and the Princess, who was must not be confounded with the Princess Guiseppe Rospigliosi, who was Mrs. Reid-Parkhurst and who for years has been seeking from the Vatican a sanction to her marriage.

GOV. WILSON SALUTES HIS RUNNING MATE

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 3.—Governor Wilson today sent the following message to Governor Marshall of Indiana, congratulating him upon his nomination as his running mate: "Sincere congratulations. I shall look forward with pleasure to my association with you."

NAVY YARD CHIEF RETIRES.

Captain Reuben D. Bittler, for a number of years captain of the Charlestown navy yard, has been retired with the rank and pay of the next highest grade, which on the retired list is commodore, and ranking as junior rear admiral in the active list.

FIRST STORY BY HEADLESS BODY SUSPECT: 'I'M INNOCENT'

WOONSOCKET, R. I., July 3.—Henri Deslouvre, the big Belgian, charged with the murder of his companion, Mrs. Angele Delmar, in the "headless body" case, made a vigorous denial of the charge against him in uttering today his first public statement since he was arrested.

The points of Deslouvre's denial are these:

That he was bullied by the police into saying things that are not true.

That he was sick during the week of June 8 and that he went fishing June 4, the time he says Mrs. Delmar went away.

That he did not identify the headless body as that of Mrs. Delmar and that he does not think yet that it is her body.

That the bundle of clothing found in Blackstone river is not her's.

That he can prove his innocence.

Deslouvre, who is in Cranston jail, awaiting a second hearing on July 13,

East Boston Boys Win Baseball Strike

The amateur baseball players of East Boston have won their strike. The teams will be supplied with baseballs and with umpires by the East Boston Committee, and everybody is happy.

The trouble arose at a meeting of the committee on Monday evening. Fifty dollars was appropriated for the championship seniors and twenty-five dollars for the juniors, but no provision was made for base balls and umpires and these are necessities.

The clubs of East Boston elected a committee and they went to the Fourth of July Committee with their troubles and won out and the championship will be fought for by a number of teams in both divisions.

SCORE SKIPPER IN NEAR COLLISION WITH TAFT BOAT

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The near collision between the Norfolk & Washington steamship Northland and the presidential yacht Mayflower, with President Taft and a party of distinguished friends on board, in Chesapeake Bay on the night of June 9, is being investigated by the Board of Steamboat Inspectors at Georgetown Customs House.

Captain Symington, U. S. N., commanding the Mayflower, brought charges against Second Officer Jones, who was at the Northland's wheel, charging him with being "unskilled in navigation."

ROOSEVELT'S COUSIN CALLS ON WILSON

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 3.—Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, cousin of the Colonel, called at the executive mansion here this afternoon and congratulated Governor Wilson upon his nomination. "I saw Kermit in New York," said Mr. Roosevelt, "and he said: 'Pop's been praying for Clark.'"

"WHY, DAD BORROWED TO HELP OUT BRYAN," SAYS GENEVIEVE CLARK

"It's too bad for Dad. I remember well when he went out and borrowed $5 here and there and $2 at a time to help Bryan make one of his campaigns when I was a little girl. I would like to choke him," exclaimed Miss Genevieve Clark when told that Bryan had changed his vote to Wilson.

Foss Home, Favors David I. Walsh as the Next Governor

Governor Foss, who returned to Boston today from the Democratic battleground at Baltimore, declared that he will not be a candidate for Governor again.

"I will not be a candidate for a third term. I am satisfied with the two years I have been Governor," said Governor Foss. He would not say that he was out of politics.

When the Governor was asked who would be the Democratic candidate, he said: "David I. Walsh would make a strong candidate."

Continuing his talk about the Democratic convention, Gov. Foss said: "It will be a great Democratic victory at election. Mayor Fitzgerald certainly did great work for the party at the convention.

"I never was excited over the aspect of the convention. It will mean a splendid victory for our party in the fall with everybody working to win."

A SWIM AROUND WARSHIP MAY BE TEST IN THE NAVY

An athletic test for naval officers is proposed, worse than the horseback ordeal that made fat army officers groan. The navy officers may be required to swim around their own battleships. That is to show they could make a safe getaway in case of sinking.

Swimming around some battleships is an endurance test. The Argentine defender, Rivadavia, for instance, is 585 feet long and 98 feet beam.

A man swimming around this mark would naturally keep a few feet from the hull. If he kept only fifteen feet away all around, he would have to swim an ellipse 615 by 128 feet. Once up and down and twice across would be 1,486 feet or over a quarter of a mile. Allowing for the curves, it would be a good deal more. A tough swim for some of the officers, they fear.

M'NARY PLACED ON HARBOR BOARD

Former Congressman William S. McNary of Boston was appointed today a member of the Board of Harbor and Land Commission by Governor Foss in place of Samuel M. Mansfield, whose term had expired. Reappointments made today were as follows:

Harry W. Sprague of Boston, as a member of the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board.

William B. de las Casas of Malden, as a member of the Metropolitan Park Commission.

Francis T. Bowles of Boston, as a Director of the Port of Boston.

Frederick T. MacLeod of Cambridge, as a Railroad Commissioner.

Alonzo R. Weed of Newton, as a member of Gas and Electrical Commission.

"L" TRAIN JUMPS TRACK DURING RUSH

All traffic on the upper "L" structure from Dudley street to Forest Hills was stopped for more than an hour this morning. The rear truck on the last car of a train of empty cars going to the Dudley street station from the Guild street train yard, was derailed at 9:33 a. m. No passengers were on board and no one was hurt. Passengers on other trains going South from Dudley street were transferred to surface cars during the tie-up.

CARMEN DESCRIBE TROUBLES

James H. Vahey, counsel for the striking street car men, announced at the hearing before the State Board of Arbitration today that a plan was under way to present to the board in full the evidence the strikers claimed they were hindered from presenting after Acting Governor Luce refused to allow them to enter the State House.

Attorney Vahey said he could not disclose the details of the plan at the present time, but that he was confident it would be successful.

The counsel for the strikers announced that he will finish the introduction of evidence Monday and will close his arguments Monday afternoon. He said the hearing might be expected to close by 6 o'clock Monday afternoon.

John Reardon of Worcester, member of the general executive board of the Carmen's union, described conditions existing on the street railway lines in Worcester and other cities. He declared that arbitration was the cornerstone of unionism.

P. F. Sheehan of Brockton, international vice president of the carmen's union, declared there were sixteen divisions to the union on the Bay State Street Railway Company, by which he is employed. He said the best good feeling prevailed between the company and its emplyes.

Other witnesses were Patrick Roach of Arlington, William F. Powers of South Boston and Thomas F. Shine, president of the Malden division of the union. President Shine explained in detail a card complaint system said to be in use on the Elevated.

"Neither the date of the alleged offence nor the name of the complainants appears on the cards sent to the employes complained about," said Mr. Shine. "Unless the employe returns the card with his signature he is called before the superintendent. To sign the card is an acknowledgement of guilt."

CARS ON REGULAR SCHEDULE TONIGHT, SAYS L OFFICIAL

One of the officials of the Boston Elevated today denied the rumor that car service would be suspended tonight at 7 o'clock because of the "night before" celebrations.

"You may say that we will run cars on the regular schedule tonight," he said.

James Gorman, a strike-breaking motorman, whose home is in Philadelphia, was arrested after his car had struck a motor truck, crushing the left leg of Albert S. Karl, eighteen, of No. 29 Soudan street, who was riding on the running board. Gorman was charged with intoxication.

The car was turning into Savin Hill avenue from Dorchester avenue, and an express auto truck owned by Abbott & Miller of Quincy, arrived at the same time. The front end of the trolley crushed into the rear of the truck, slightly damaging it and catching Karl between the car and the truck. He was taken to the office of Dr. Brearton, where he was attended and later taken to the City Hospital.

BLOWS HIMSELF UP BY DYNAMITE BLAST

Placing a stick of dynamite in his mouth, attached to a lighted tube, causing it to explode, Clovis Ouillette of North Billerica today blew his head to pieces and dismembered his entire body. A large hole was torn in the living room of his bungalow adjoining his brother's residence by the force of the explosion. Ouillette had been despondent on account of illness and inability to find any work. He told friends that he would kill himself. He was forty-one years old.

$7,000 EACH NIGHT FOR SIGNOR CARUSO

NEW YORK, July 3.—Enrico Caruso will sing at the National Opera House in Buenos Ayres at the largest salary ever paid to a grand opera artist. The contract calls for at least twelve appearances at $7,000 a performance, with the right to sing as many more times at the same figure as Mr. Caruso chooses.

LUCE EXPLAINS "RIOT ACT" SCENE AT STATE HOUSE

THE RIOT ACT

Chapter 211, Section 1. (The so-called riot act.)

If twelve or more persons, being armed with clubs or other dangerous weapons, or if thirty or more persons, whether armed or not, are unlawfully, riotously or tumultuously assembled in a city or town, the Mayor and each of the Aldermen of such city, each of the Selectmen of such a town, every justice of the peace living in any such city or town and the Sheriff of the county and his deputies shall go among the persons so assembled, or as near to them as may be with safety, and in the name of the Commonwealth command all persons so assembled immediately and peaceably to disperse; and if they do not thereupon immediately and peaceably disperse * * * arresting such persons.

Robert Luce, who is acting Governor for a few days in the absence of Governor Foss, today became the storm centre of the Boston Elevated strike.

In a statement given out today Luce denies:

1. That he read the riot act to the strikers' leaders.
2. That he shut the strikers out of the State House.

But Luce admits:

1. That he read that portion of the statutes which is commonly known as the riot act, and
2. He refused to allow the strikers to enter the State House because "A few would answer the purpose."

CAUSES STIR ALL OVER THE STATE.

Luce's action in shutting out the strikers has created a stir throughout the State, not only among labor men but also among all others who feel that the strikers deserve just treatment.

Friends of the Elevated and even members of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration had openly doubted the statement of the labor leaders that at least 2,000 carmen were on strike. Attorney Vahey suggested to the commission that here was but one way to disprove the statement—to bring the men to the State House and show them to the State Board.

The strikers were called together and marched peacefully up Beacon Hill where they lined up in front of the State House and waited to be called in.

There was not a menacing gesture in the crowd. Apparently the men were not armed. No man attempted to enter the State House, waiting for the formal call.

And to representatives in this crowd Luce read the riot act.

Luce's Statement.

"The statement that appeared in morning newspapers, that I read the riot act to the strikers when they came to the hearing yesterday at the State House, is erroneous and misrepresents my action entirely,' said the Lieutenant-Governor.

"When this crowd came to the State House I had to study the psychology of it. There is always more or less inflammatory and combustible material in any crowd that one must guard against. When I read to the representatives a portion of the statutes of this State, I was not reading the riot act. I was simply justifying my position that when people

BOARD WILLING TO HEAR L MEN

Just before the hearing on the Elevated strike was resumed today before the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration at the State House, the AMERICAN, through one of its reporters, endeavored to find out from the members of the board direct if they had notified Lieutenant-Governor Luce of their willingness to receive the striking men at the State House yesterday.

"Did the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration inform Lieutenant-Governor Luce yesterday that its members were willing to receive the strikers in the manner in which they intended to present themselves?" was the question asked Richard P. Barry, Charles G. Wood, Secretary Bernard F. Supple and Chairman Willard Howland.

Mr. Barry answered the question straightforward; the other three sought to avoid the issue and to pass it along to a third party.

Mr. Barry said: "Yes, every member of the board in joint conference with Lieutenant-Governor Luce, the strikers and their counsel, told him the board was willing to receive the strikers as a body."

When asked about the Lieutenant-Governor's objection to having the men clog the corridors and hearing room at the State House, Mr. Barry said:

"Chairman Howland told the Lieutenant-Governor that no inconvenience would be caused because the men were coming by districts; that the corridors were roomy, and the hearing room was large enough to accommodate any division which presented itself."

Mr. Barry was then asked if he had anything to say concerning the refusal of the Lieutenant-Governor to permit the men to enter the State House and appear before the board.

"I have no further comment to make," Mr. Barry replied. "I don't care to discuss the question. The facts are as stated."

When the question was put to Mr. Wood, he said:

"I think it would be better if you put the question to Chairman Howland. I do not desire to be quoted until after Chairman Howland has spoken on the question."

Chairman Howland was then asked the same question. The hearing was about to begin and the chairman was in a great hurry. He said:

"The hearing is just about to be called to order and I haven't time to discuss it now."

The chairman was reminded that no detailed answer was required—simply "Yes" or "No."

He evaded the question and said: "I prefer that you would see Lieutenant-Governor Luce."

He was told that the answer was wanted from him direct, and not from a third party. He refused to have anything further to say at present.

Secretary Supple said: "I think you had better put the question up to the chairman."

When told that Attorney Vahey, Organizer Fred Fay and C. F. Sheehan, international vice-president, all declared that the board had informed the Lieutenant-Governor, Mr. Supple said:

"Well, do you doubt the statements of Mr. Vahey? He is a reputable citizen whose word has never been doubted by anyone so far as I know."

TWO-YEAR TERM FOR 'L' STRIKER

Michael B. Connors, alias Michael B. Monahan, a striking Elevated employe, living at No. 93 Myrtle street, Somerville, was given two years in the House of Correction today after being adjudged guilty of two assaults and was held for the Grand Jury on a charge of robbery of an Elevated employe's cap and badge. It is the heaviest sentence imposed since the beginning of the strike.

Connors appealed and was held in a total of $3,000.

Connors was before Judge Bragg in Charlestown District Court. He was charged with assault and battery on Homer J. Seacrist, a "loyal" Elevated conductor, who lives at No. 1 Caldwell street, Charlestown, and on Michael Sullivan, a strikebreaking motorman of No. 21 Mt. Pleasant street, Charlestown.

He was given one year on each charge.

Judge Bragg also found probable cause and held Connors for the Grand Jury on a charge of robbing Harry Holden of No. 21 Perkins street, Charlestown, an Elevated employe, of his cap and badge on June 23.

Wilson Nominated by New York Aid

Marshall Is Given the Second Place

Speaker Clark Says Bryan's Slander Cost Him the Nomination.

BALTIMORE, July 3.—Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey for President, and Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana for Vice-President, was the ticket finally completed by the Democratic National Convention shortly before 2 o'clock this morning, with the nomination of the Western executive for second place on the national ticket.

An analysis of the vote for the head of the ticket shows that Clark was prevented from getting the nomination by States which the interests control. The interests had determined at any cost to interfere with his nomination.

Tammany's vote also helped nominate Wilson. New York's ninety votes swung to Wilson just when they could secure him the nomination.

The Virginia delegation and the Underwood Southern States, which Mr. Ryan controls, also going for Wilson. These Underwood States were held from Clark when they could nominate him and were delivered to Wilson when they could nominate Wilson. This relieves Clark of Bryan's false charges of a deal.

The fact that the nomination of Wilson was made possible at last by the support of Taggart in Indiana, Ryan in Virginia, Sullivan in Illinois and Tammany of New York, is hailed by the Clark men as a complete vindication of the Speaker.

The convention had lasted seven days, and forty-six ballots were necessary to the selection of a Presidential nominee, a new record. Governor Marshall was nominated on the third ballot, by acclamation after Governor John Burke of North Dakota, his nearest rival, had withdrawn from the contest.

The feature of the closing session of the convention was the pleading of the Wilson managers with Champ Clark to accept the nomination for Vice-President. They told him that if he would accept he would get the nomination by acclamation. Three times was the offer made, and as many times refused.

The negotiations began as soon as Mr. Wilson's nomination was agreed on. In response to urgent requests, the Speaker motored from Washington to Baltimore for the purpose of permitting a more intimate conference than could be heard over the telephone, and at the Maryland Club he told the representative men of the convention that he could not permit the use of his name.

He then left for Washington but scarcely had reached that city when negotiations were resumed over the telephone.

The delegates refused to take "No" for an answer.

Mr. Bryan said that if Mr. Clark would accept, he would present his name to the convention. Clark was told that the nomination would go to him unanimously and by acclamation. Representative Palmer, the Wilson floor leader of the convention, added his plea.

"He must take it," said the Wilson manager. "If he won't we must tender it anyway. If we go that far I am sure he will not refuse, but if he does, the National Committee can fill the vacancy."

The Missourians were not willing to leave it there. They sent Johnson of their State, to the telephone for another conference.

"Unequivocally, NO." came the Speaker's words bacy by telephone. He declared again that he much preferred the office of Speaker to that of Vice-President.

"I will not accept, and I most certainly will refuse to serve if nominated," he said.

Even then the Wilson leader, Representative Palmer, was still of the opinion that the Missourian's name should be presented again to the Convention, and many of the Missouri delegates agreed to make no further opposition if this course should be taken.

Later in the night, the leaders of all factions decided to go into a conference upon the subject, many holding that if Clark should be nominated and should decline, the effect would be injurious.

Palmer, at 11 p. m., dashed over to Washington in a seventy mile an hour auto car to beg Speaker Clark in the presidential nominee's name to run.

Democratic Platform of 1912, in Brief Form

TARIFF REFORM—We favor the immediate downward revision of the existing high and, in many cases, prohibitive tariff duties, insisting that material reductions be speedily made upon the necessaries of life. Articles entering into competition with trust-controlled products and articles of American manufacture which are sold abroad more cheaply than at home could be put upon the free list. * * * We favor the ultimate attainment of the principles we advocate by legislation that will not injure or destroy legitimate industry.

HIGH COST OF LIVING—We charge that excessive prices result in a large measure from the high tariff laws enacted and maintained by the Republican party and from trusts and commercial conspiracies fostered and encouraged by such laws, and we assert that no substantial relief can be secured for the people until import duties on the necessaries of life are materially reduced.

ANTI-TRUST LAW—We favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal as well as the civil law against trusts and trust officials, and demand an enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States.

INCOME TAX; POPULAR SENATORS—We congratulate the country upon the triumph of two important reforms demanded in the last national platform, namely, the amendment of the Federal Constitution authorizing an income tax and the amendment for the popular election of Senators.

CAMPAIGN FUND PUBLICITY—We note with gratification the unanimous sentiment in favor of more publicity, before the election, of campaign contributions.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES—The movement towards more popular government should be promoted through legislation in each State which will permit the expression of the preference of the electors for national candidates at presidential primaries.

TERM OF PRESIDENT—We favor a single presidential term, and to that end urge the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution making the President of the United States ineligible to re-election.

PARCELS POST; RURAL DELIVERY—We favor the establishment of a parcels post or postal express, and also the extension of the rural delivery system as rapidly as practicable.

RAILROAD REGULATION—We favor the efficient supervision and regulation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines engaged in interstate commerce.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS—The campaign contributions plank pledges the party to the enactment of a law prohibiting any corporation from contributing to a campaign fund.

PANAMA CANAL—It favors legislation forbidding the use of the Panama canal by ships owned or controlled by railroad carriers engaged in transportation competitive with the canal.

PURE FOOD—A pure food and public health plank declares for the union and strengthening of the various governmental agencies relating to pure food, quarantine, vital statistics and human health.

BAY STATE DELEGATION TO ARRIVE HOME TOMORROW

Worn and weary from a week's balloting and battling at the Baltimore Armory, the Massachusetts delegation will arrive in Boston at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow.

They left the convention city today, after the nomination of Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey for President, the adoption of a progressive platform and the choice of Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana for Vice-President had completed the convention's task.

Governor Marshall was picked early today as Governor Wilson's running mate. The platform had been adopted during a lull in the proceedings, while Wilson's managers pleaded with Champ Clark, at Washington, to lend his strength to his victorious rival, by accepting second place.

Clark refused. Three times the offer was made, with new arguments each time, but when the emissaries of the New Jersey man saw the Speaker's determination was final, they gave up, and Marshall was chosen.

Bryan's Valedictory.

A feature of the final session was the "valedictory" of William J. Bryan, dethroned leader of the Democracy. It followed his suggestion as a vice-presidential possibility by the delegates from the District of Columbia. Bryan's appeal for the choice of Governor Burke or Governor Chamberlain for Vice-President marked his split with Wilson, who accepted Marshall.

Among the names presented to the convention as vice-presidential possibilities were those of Champ Clark, Governor Burke, Elmore W. Hurst of Chicago and Governor Marshall. After Champ Clark had withdrawn, Governor Marshall was named.

Clark supporters—William Randolph Hearst, Senator Stone of Missouri, former Senator Dubois and others—today pledged themselves to support Governor Wilson's candidacy. Champ Clark himself was among the first to wire congratulations to the nominee, and the other candidates followed fast. Clark supporters among the delegates pledged support, and there were unanimous predictions of a Democratic victory in November.

"Marse Henry" Watterson, in his Courier-Journal, declared he would support Wilson. He put it characteristically:

"In a contest between President Taft, Roosevelt and the Devil, we will be obliged to support his Satanic Majesty."

NEW YORK, July 3.—When asked for a statement last night, William Randolph Hearst said:

> As I have already said, I went to Baltimore hoping that Champ Clark would be nominated, but determined to support any Progressive candidate and platform. I will support Mr. Wilson.

ROOSEVELT WILL STICK TO HIS PLAN FOR THIRD PARTY

OYSTER BAY, July 3.—That hat that Colonel Roosevelt shied into the ring quite a few weeks ago, though it got another kick by the action of the Democrats in naming Wilson, is still in the ring. The Colonel says so himself. He's not discouraged in the least.

"I shall continue to stand for the Progressive nomination," said Roosevelt, after he heard of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson.

The former President stated his belief that the events in the Democratic as well as the Republican convention demonstrated the need of a new party.

The national convention of the new party will be held in Chicago, it has been decided, probably during the first week of August.

"I never go into a fight on a contingent basis," said the Colonel." I shall, of course, continue to stand for the Progressive nomination. To my mind, what has gone on in Baltimore for the past ten days has shown the utterly irreconcilable nature of the elements within the Democratic party, elements so irreconcilable as to make it hopeless to expect from them any permanent reform movement along constructive lines.

"It has also shown that any nomination obtained at Baltimore could, after all, be obtained only by the support of men like Mr. Taggart in Indiana and Mr. Sullivan in Illinois.

"Under these conditions I feel that the events at Baltimore, like the events at Chicago, prove the absolute need of a new, nation-wide, non-sectional party which shall in good faith stand for the interests of the people as a whole."

Editorial comment that the nomination of Wilson has hurt Roosevelt's chances was mentioned to the Colonel. "They say Wilson's nomination has taken the wind out of your sails," suggested a questioner.

Roosevelts' jaws snapped. "Is that so?" he returned hotly. "Well, that's their opinion."

E. A. Van Valkenburg, one of the Colonel's Pennsylvania backers, went to Sagamore Hill to work over the call to arms that is to be issued tomorrow in New York.

PROTEST AGAINST POORLY EQUIPPED TRAINS OF B. & M.

Sixty Boston & Maine commutors, through Attorneys Robert E. Goodwin and J. O. Proctor, Jr., have filed a protest with the officials of that road over the seating and lighting facilities on its trains. Copies of the petition have been sent to the principal public authorities of several New England States.

In the petition the attention of the railroad officials is called to the fact that no standard of seats is being used in the cars and that those in use are uncomfortable. The petition further says that the lighting in many trains does not serve for reading and is painful to the eyes. The petitioners charge conditions are worse since the New Haven road took over the management of the Boston & Maine.

BOSTON CUSTOMS RENT REFUNDED

WASHINGTON, uly 3.—Three hundred thousand dollars spent for rental of temporary quarters out of the $1,800,000 appropriation for the new custom house at Boston, while that building was in the course of construction, was today refunded by a bill appropriating that amount which was favorably reported to the Senate on motion of Senator Lodge.

AMHERST CAN SELL ONLY AT WHOLESALE

AMHERST, July 3.—President K. L. Butterfield has announced that as a result of the public hearing recently held by the trustees of the Agricultural College, relative to the sale of its products in Amherst, it has been decided to continue the rules adopted in 1907. Heads of departments are, however, authorized to sell produce in Amherst at wholesale.

now has counsel. This fact, with his denial, indicates that he will make a vigorous fight in the lower court for acquittal.

His counsel is Former Lieutenant-Governor Adelard Archambault.

At the next hearing Mr. Archambault will move that there is not any evidence to warrant further detention of his client.

It is expected that the defense will attack the police identification of the body in the first place and Deslouvre's alleged connection with the case in the next.

Here is Deslouvre's statement:

"The police have made charges against me which are not true. There are a few things which I can prove. First, I can prove that I was sick during the week of June 3. A nerve doctor, named Eugene Basquis, gave me some pills. I can also prove that I went fishing June 4. Several people saw me.

Says Mrs. Delmar Drank.

"It was nothing for Mrs. Delmar to go away from me. She drank a lot and she had a bad temper. She left me two or three times before and I can prove from several people that I said she had left me again, taking with her $48 of my money. I am innocent of this crime and I have been bullied making statements that were not true.

"The statement was given out by the police that I had identified the body. I did not identify it, and I do not think it is the body of Angele. It is too big for her. The police bullied me into saying that the clothes belonged to her. I do not think they are her clothing. When the time comes I can prove that I am innocent of this crime."

Report Head Is Found.

It was reported today that the police had found the missing head of the body which they declare is that of Mrs. Delmar.

Chief Lowell J. Boston denied this. He said: "We only wish we had found the head."

THE NEWS DISTURBS MARSHALL'S SLUMBER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 3.—Thomas R. Marshall early today learned that he had been chosen Democratic candidate for the vice-presidency, through a partly opened door, the porch light showing him clad in pajamas. He said that he had been sleeping soundly and that the fight at Baltimore had not been worrying him.

Gov. Marshall made no formal statement other than that he was glad that the nomination had come to him.

FEDERALS ATTACK MEXICAN REBELS

BACHIMBA, Mexico, July 3.—After several days of delay General Huerta, the federal commander, gave word at 5 o'clock this morning to attack the rebel army gathered near here under General Pascual Orozo. A few shells dislodged the rebels from one important position during the night.

FIRE FROM FENCE SPREADS DAMAGE

Fire today partially destroyed two frame buildings in the rear of No. 485 Dorchester avenue, South Boston, causing damage estimated at $8,000. The fire on a fence communicated with a stable belonging to George H. Cavanagh, and spread to the upper part of a paper warehouse owned by C. H. Graham.

assemble to the number of more than thirty in a certain cause the public should be protected by some means.

"I took my action not that I have any feeling one way or the other in this discussion. I want to protect the interests of the public. The same treatment would have been doled out to any assemblage of persons. There was nothing to be gained by having this whole representation of strikers at the hearing. A few would answer the purpose and we are not in this business to take account of spectacular effects."

"But were not the Woman Suffragists and Socialists admitted in a body," was asked.

"Well," replied the Lieutenant-Governor, smiling at the question and showing renewed energy in answering it, "I do not know that the women need any restraining influences about their rights and we are giving the women privileges today that should not be questioned. As for the Socialists, if they came in a crowd to the State House and by their presence would outnumber other listeners, I think that some action should be taken."

"Have the strikers by their unworthiness shown themselves that they are not to be considered?" was put to him.

"I am perfectly neutral in this matter. To serve the best interests of the public I must feel this way. Into the merits or demerits of the strike I do not care to enter," was his reply.

"Did you take this attitude because you are in sympathy with the Boston Elevated?

"There was a report after the hearing yesterday that I took this action because I was in sympathy with the Boston Elevated," he answered, "but I want to go upon record as having nothing to do with the Elevated. One gets so misrepresented. But I am very glad to state that I am not opposed to the strikers. In short, I am looking after the best interests of this Commonwealth."

The State Board today resumed its hearing in the case. Attorney Vahey declared that the Board specifically asked that the strikers be allowed to enter, by divisions, so that they might judge of the character and number of the men. Mr. Luce refused.

Attorney Vahey's statement is as follows:

> I was very much surprised at the statement of the acting Governor that the men could not enter, and asked him what he meant by saying such a thing, and he replied that he meant just what he had said, "These men cannot come into this building and make any kind of a demonstration."
>
> I then told him that no demonstration of any kind was to be attempted; all that we wished to do was to show the members of the State Board how many men were on strike and the fact that they were not a crowd of bums and drunkards, such as the officials of the Boston Elevated would lead the general public to believe by their advertisements in the papers.

All of the officers of the union, together with the members of the State Board, then called at the executive chambers, and Acting Governor Luce told them that the strikers could not enter the building during the afternoon, as the State Board did not wish them nor need all of them at the hearing.

Willard Howland, chairman of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, who was present, then spoke up and said that the State Board did need the men and wished them to be allowed to enter the building, each division at a time.

Despite the assurances of the members of the State Board that the presence of the strikers was necessary to carry on the investigation, the Acting Governor said that they could not enter, and during a consultation with Chief Whitney of the State police and Colonel Mossman, acting sergeant-at-arms, he ordered all the officers to be on duty at the doors and not to allow anybody to enter who could not show that they had business in the building."

NO POLICE FOR STRIKERS' PARTY

William L. Murray, a member of the executive committee of striking street car men, today declared that police protection was refused the strikers at their lawn party in South Boston yesterday, although the strikers agreed to pay for the policemen.

Murray, who lives at No. 10 Shepton street, Dorchester, said:

"The striking street car men held a lawn party on the Locust street grounds in South Boston yesterday afternoon and evening. The attendance ranged from 2,000 to 2,500 and there were many women and children present.

"We were surprised when the gates were thrown open and the patrons began to flock in to learn that not a single policeman reported for duty. There was not a uniformed officer in the grounds at any time. I promptly telephoned to Station 12. A lieutenant was in charge. I didn't get his name.

"I asked him where the five policemen were that Captain Evans had promised to detail. He said we couldn't have any policemen, as they were all tired or busy. I told him we were willing to pay them, and felt we were entitled to the ordinary protection accorded in such circumstances.

"He replied that he couldn't help that, and that there were no officers available."

SEE FIREBUG'S WORK IN BLAZE

The second mysterious fire in the North End within two days was discovered early today in the basement of a three-story brick dwelling house at No. 23 Henchman street. The building is owned by Isadore Sonnabend, and occupied by several families.

A citizen saw smoke issuing from the cellar and sounded an alarm. The blaze was extinguished before it had caused much damage. The street floor of the house is used as a linen store. There have been a number of fires in the North End, believed to have been the work of a firebug.

MISS DOGGAT WEDS LAWRENCE ANDREWS

Miss Pauline C. Doggat, daughter of Frederick K. Doggat of North Adams, and Lawrence S. Andrews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Andrews of Boston and Cambridge, were married last night at the Hotel Somerset. The maid of honor was Marion Doggat, sister of the bride, and her five-year-old brother, Ted Doggat, was ring bearer. Arthur F. Anderson of Swampscott was the best man. After a four weeks' wedding trip the couple will live at No. 96 Winthrop road, Brookline.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Somerset. The decorations were red and white and pink roses.

NEW INQUIRY FOR SHIPPERS

Another investigation concerning rates charged shippers by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad is likely to follow that already in progress before the Interstate Commerce Commission relative to the facilities and methods of the Boston & Maine and New Haven systems. The traffic rate inquiry was indicated by the testimony of George S. Wentworth, a Boston lumber dealer, who, in addition to complaints about freight delays, declared that there had been a general advanse in tariff rates.

E. G. Burkhardt, one of the vice-presidents of the New Haven road, proceeded to question Mr. Wentworth about rates when Chairman Prouty exclaimed: "It is not necessary to take up time now on this matter, for that was not intended to be dealt with at this time. If it appears that rates ought to be investigated, we shall go into that phase at another hearing.

Delays Unnecessary.

E. O. Hatch testified for the Joseph Peck Company of this city, concerning freight conditions in New England as regards the goods shipped to and from this company. He expressed much dissatisfaction with what he termed unnecessary delays to points in New England.

E. H. Naylor Secretary of the Springfield Board of Trade did not himself testify, but presented letters from forty members of the Western New England Traffic Bureau in which complaints are registered of poor service through the western part of the State.

John H. Murphy, Secretary of the Lowell Board of Trade, told of some unsatisfactory conditions in that city.

A letter from Walter M. Lowney was read in which Mr. Lowney wrote that one of his clerks unknown to him had written to the New Haven people, in response to the request of that Company—expressing satisfaction with all freight service. Mr. Lowney denied that he had anything to do with the letter and said that he could not give the commendation of the roads asked for.

Defend Ives' Course.

The Chamber of Commerce, through James A. McKibben, secretary, has issued a statement defending the work of David O. Ives, transportation manager of the Chamber, who was attacked by certain members of the Chamber for his activities in securing evidence of transportation conditions on the Boston & Maine and New Haven railroads.

Members friendly to the New Haven Railroad interests in the Chamber of Commerce addressed a petition to the president and board of directors protesting that Mr. Ives was acting without authority in connection with the Interstate Commerce Commission inquiry in such a manner as to "make the official action of the Chamber prejudicial to [illegible] of its members who represent 'New England's most important industry.'"

The petition demanded that a special meeting of the Chamber be called if the Chamber were to see if the Chamber approves of Mr. Ives' stand at the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing. The official statement from the Chamber resulted. It was directed to Lucius Tuttle, Edwin Farnham Greene, F. C. Dumaine, Daniel Wing et al, mostly directors of the Boston & Maine and New Haven roads. The report says:

> While the inquiries were not confined to the service rendered by any one particular railroad, but covered all the roads in New England, it was found that by far the most serious complaints were of service on the Boston & Maine railroad. It was clear that the service on the Boston & Maine was the cause of a great deal of dissatisfaction among its patrons. This dissatisfaction has also been voiced in the press, and in many ways attracted public attention. That it exists, there can be no doubt. Whether this dissatisfaction is justified, and whether the conditions complained of are fully capable of amelioration, are questions which the Interstate Commerce Commission is eminently well qualified to determine. The proposed investigation, therefore, appears to be well justified, and it is confidently believed that its results will be beneficial and will tend to promote better understanding and better relations among all parties concerned.

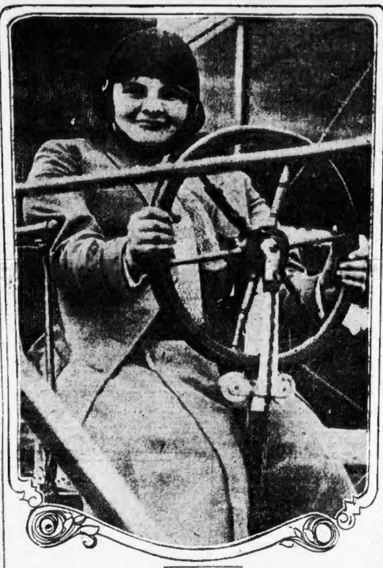
Blanche Scott Defies Death

◆◆◆

"Game Needs the Sacrifice"

BLANCHE SCOTT, AVIATRIX, FLYING AT SQUANTUM.



Here is the graphic story of Miss Blanche Stuart Scott, the woman aviator who flew yesterday after the terrible death of Miss Harriet Quimby.

By BLANCHE STUART SCOTT.

I have just come back from Squantum Field, where I made a flight over the very spot where Miss Quimby and Mr. Willard met death. I feel pretty shaky, but I am going to stick to the game. I flew simply because I wanted to show them, that a woman has the same kind of nerve a man has. None of us wanted to fly very much. We all would rather have made this a day of rest in honor of the dead. But we thought it would give people more confidence in the new science if we flew.

It was a horrible catastrophe, that I can hardly get out of my mind. I was the only one flying when Miss Quimby got back from her flight to the Boston Light. As I saw her coming I was filled with admiration for her wonderful pluck.

The flight to the Light is one of the most dangerous undertakings. There is no more perilous flight in this country. It has only been done three times before, and then by Grahame-White and "Tommy" Sopwith. It is over twenty miles of territory that is sure death if the aviator falls. If the craft is not wrecked in the shallow water is can only land on tiny rocky islands that would utterly smash a machine.

Unaware of Tragedy.

As I saw Miss Quimby skimming back toward the aviation grounds I was fervently glad that she was safe. When I saw her circle over the safe ground of the field I had not the slightest doubt but that she would come down safely. I did not know she would attempt to make another circle of the course.

When she was over the field she had her craft 5,000 feet high. I was only 200 feet up and I got away so that she would have plenty of room to land her big craft. I was just turning the western pylon with the intention of landing when I saw the crowd all rushing to the gateway. It looked as if something unusual had happened, but I supposed that it was only the unusual interest of the crowd in Miss Quimby's magnificent flight.

I finished my circle in order to land, without knowing what had happened. If by any chance I had witnessed the catastrophe I have not the slightest doubt there would have been two accidents. I am sure it would have unnerved me completely in the air. I don't think I could have stood it. Imagine seeing a man and a woman pitch headlong out of the same kind of a craft you are flying?

Will Continue to Fly.

By some uncanny flash of intuition I seemed to know that she was dead when I struck the ground. As I was looking at the crowd on the beach some one rushed past and shouted "Miss Quimby is killed." For a moment everything went black before me. I sank back in the seat of my aeroplane. When I came to my senses Mr. Martin was fanning me.

Miss Quimby was one of the finest flyers in America. She had wonderful nerve. If her ability to handle the particular craft she was flying when she was killed had been equal to her nerve I do not think that the accident would have caused her death. The trouble is that she had driven the craft only four or five times before she made the flight to the light.

It was a speedier machine than she was used to. When poor Mr. Willard's body was pitched out of the craft the balance was upset. The horror of it must have unnerved her to such an extent that she forgot to jam her rudder up.

I was the first woman in America to drive an aeroplane, and I am the only woman pilot left. But I am going to continue to fly. The game needs the sacrifices.

"UNKISSED GIRL" THE BRIDE OF T. J. WALSH

BROCKTON, July 3.—Miss Lillian P. Roundy, daughter of Mrs. James H. Chase, and Brockton's famous unkissed maiden, ended the romance of her courtship with Timothy James Walsh today by marrying him at the parsonage of the Congregational church on Oakland street, Rev. Alan Hudson, pastor, officiated. When the story of Miss Roundy became known through the AMERICAN last December that Brockton had one "unkissed" maiden, the tidings made a deep and abiding impression upon Timothy J. Walsh, ticket agent of the New Haven railroad.

President Will Reach Beverly Early Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The President, accompanied by Mrs. Taft and Major Rhoades, leaves Washington at 5:35 o'clock today for the "Summer White House" at Beverly, Mass. The presidential party is scheduled to arrive at Beverly early tomorrow and to celebrate the Fourth in a fitting, although safe and sane, manner.

The Taft Club of Beverly will meet the President at the station with a band and will serenade the chief executive throughout the day. The President and Mrs. Taft will hold an informal reception in the afternoon and will witness a fireworks display in their honor at night.

As an important political conference is scheduled for Monday at the White House, President Taft will return to Washington Monday morning, going back to Beverly the latter part of next week. He will follow this program all Summer, instead of spending two months at Beverly as has been his custom.

TITANIC TRAGEDY CAUSES NEW RULES

LONDON, July 3.—For the first time since the Board of Trade Titanic inquiry began official notice was given today that the government regulations governing life-saving appliances on British ships would be overhauled. Sir Rufus Isaacs, Attorney-General, announced today in his summing up that Lord Mersey's conclusions would be embodied in new laws for the regulation of English ships.

M'DONALD SAYS THAW IS CRAZY

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 3.—When the Thaw sanity hearing was resumed before Judge Martin J. Keogh here today, Dr. Carlos McDonald, an alienist employed by Special Deputy Attorney-General Jerome, in his fight to keep Harry K. Thaw in Matteawan State Hospital for the Insane, was called to the stand. Dr. McDonald declared his belief that Thaw is insane, and that his release would jeopardize the welfare and safety of the public.

The only recoveries from parsonia the witness has ever known of was where an incorrect diagnosis had been made and the supposed paranoia was in reality constitutional inferiority.

Ayer of Maine has, of course, no connection with the suit. The AMERICAN regrets very much that this error was made and gladly prints this statement in justice to Mr. Ayer. Every friend and acquaintance of the Rev. Mr. Ayer recognizes that the use of his picture in such a connection could only be an error.

ASK HEARING ON KOSHER PRICES

A public hearing on the high cost of kosher meat is asked in a resolution addressed to Mayor Fitzgerald and the City Council, and backed by two hundred and fifty Jewish women of the North End.

This resolution is the result of a stirring meeting held in the roof garden of the Social Service House, No. 112 Salem street. The city government is asked to grant a public hearing, at which facts bearing on the high cost of meat and the general strike situation may be presented. Addresses were made in Yiddish at the meeting by Mrs. Eva Hoffman, president of the Mother's Protective Association; Attorney Alexander E. Rose, treasurer of the organization, and Philip Davis of the Social Service House.

WILLARD, VICTIM OF AVIATION MEET, BURIED AT STERLING

The funeral of William A. P. Willard, one of the victims of the aeroplane accident at Squantum Monday afternoon, was held today at 10 from the undertaking establishment of David Curtis, Dudley street, Roxbury. Rev. D. F. McDaniel of Dorchester made a prayer and read a portion of scripture and then pronounced a short eulogy upon the work and achievements of the deceased. The interment was at Sterling, Mass.

The body of Miss Harriett Quimby, the daring aviatrix who lost her life at the Squantum meet, was taken to New York early today, accompanied by her mother; her intimate friend, Miss Helen Vanderbilt; her manager, A. Lee Stevens, and William Hilliard, of Boston, an aviator and personal friend of Miss Quimby.

The funeral of Miss Quimby will be held in New York tomorrow. The body will be taken to burial rooms on Twenty-third street, where services will be held before the body is removed to Woodlawn Cemetery for interment.

Andre Haupert, the aviator who taught Miss Quimby, with Willard, said that from what he knew of the accident he thought it was unavoidable.

Local Coppers Irregular in the Morning Trading

By W. H. ROSS.

W. H. ROSS

STATE STREET, July 3.—Midday—Some coppers sold higher this morning in the Boston market, which had a quiet but firm opening. During the first hour Calumet & Hecla advanced eight points, and Osceola gained more than one. There were fractional gains for U. S. Smelting, Quincy and Isle Royale. Those in the recessional list included Copper Range, North Butte, Mason Valley, Butte & Superior, East Butte, Granby, Superior and Shannon.

Outside of coppers, American and Pond Creek went up a little, and United Fruit advanced 2 points.

Trading was in fair volume during the morning and orders were well distributed. Sentiment on the local exchange reflected the optimism reported in New York.

New York Market Starts Strong.

The New York market started strong and there was a brisk demand for many stocks at the opening. Initial business indicated that traders were ready to resume operations now that they know who the presidential candidates are, and it seemed to be the general belief that there will be a resumption of speculative activity before long, if not at once.

In early trading, a number of issues made gains and some went more than a point higher. Much of the buying is described as hurried covering by room traders who had put out lines of shorts as soon as the nomination of Woodrow Wilson at Baltimore seemed assured.

Steel common, which was heavily sold in the last hour yesterday, was one of the strongest market features in the first few minutes of today's trading. It went above 72 at once. There were gains for some coppers, both Amalgamated and American Smelting selling higher. Among other stocks to advance were Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Interborough Metropolitan. Great Northern preferred advanced ⅞ to 136. Reading went up ½ to 168½. Pittsburgh Coal was the strongest of the specialties, moving up 2¼ to 93¾.

The Curb was steady.

Dealings in American railway shares were broader in London and prices for them and Canadian Pacific were fairly firm. There was an unsteady tone to Grand Trunk issues, as earnings by that road were regarded as unsatisfactory. A London market cablegram reads—"The nomination of Woodrow Wilson for President by the Democratic national convention is approved here."

In the London copper metal market, which was dull, spot and futures opened each 2s. 6d. lower.

Copper Metal Sales Few.

As copper producers are pretty well sold out for the Summer and consumers have placed orders for all the metal they will need for some time, the market for this commodity has entered upon a period of dullness which is likely to be protracted.

As to the price situation, Thompson, Towle & Co. advance an interesting theory, saying: "It is good opinion that the recent £2 decline in the price of London standard copper and the failure to increase the Anaconda dividend have a close relationship. This opinion is based on the fact that the leading metal interests both here and abroad do not desire any further increase in the price of copper, and as the leading interests were sold three months ahead with an insistent demand it required heroic action to prevent a runaway market and the £ decline in London prices proved effective in temporarily stopping the demand. It is also known that it was the intention to increase the Anaconda dividend at the recent meeting and this intention was not secret in quite a wide circle, but when the old rate was announced it caused great surprise and many explanations. While the £2 decline and failure to increase Anaconda's dividend coming almost simultaneously may have a close relationship, the Anaconda increase is now still ahead to create market interest and copper is firmly established on a 17¾-cent basis."

The London copper market opened dull today. Speculative interest there appears to have flagged out of late.

Financial News in Brief.

The Denver & Rio Grande operating revenue for May decreased $20,338, the shrinkage in total income was $231,213 and the increase in the deficit $235,668.

Field & Fay say that with the payment of the dividend of 2½ per cent. on July 20, the La Rose Consolidated Silver Mines of Cobalt, Ont., will have distributed to their stockholders $2,954,185, or 42 per cent. The present dividend calls for the payment of $187,000.

The Missouri Supreme Court decision permanently prohibiting the trial of a suit relating to Wabash roads is in favor of George J. Gould, the Iron Mountain and the Equitable Trust Company of New York.

It is not many months since there was rioting in France because the price of food advanced. This was due to a crop shortage. But the French have better prospects for this year. For the five months ending with May their importations of foodstuffs decreased to the amount of $56,852,400 and their exportations increased $4,703,000.

The Standard Oil Company has raised prices twice within a fortnight or so. The latest advance is half a cent a gallon on all grades of naphtha and gasoline.

Postal bank depositors who wish to turn their savings into government bonds will now have another chance. The treasury department will issue 2½ per cent. twenty-year bonds of this class to the amount of $854,860. These bonds will be the third series and will make the outstanding total $1,314,140. It is estimated that postal savings bank deposits now aggregate $20,000,000.

The Panama Canal has cost the United States $276,487,000 to date, and it is said at Washington that the government has enough money in the treasury to preclude the necessity of issuing any bonds this year to obtain canal money.

Judge E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, has sailed for Europe, to be gone about two months. It is said that there is little chance of the price of steel products being further advanced before he gets back, or, in fact, until after the election. The price of steel pipe of all sizes has just been advanced $2 a ton.

Among the bond offerings of Hornblower & Weeks are first mortgage 5 per cent. gold ones of the Baton Rouge Electric Company. They run for thirty years. This company owns and operates the entire electric railway, lighting, power and gas systems of Baton Rouge, the capital of Louisiana, serving a population of about 16,000. Population, property valuation and bank deposits there have approximately double since 1900, while Baton Rouge is rapidly becoming a railroad centre, being served by five roads, including Illinois Central and Southern Pacific.

During June the Pittsburgh Bessemer-Lake Erie road broke all its transportation records by hauling 1,153,000 tons of ore. This was an increase of 217,000 over the June, 1911, record.

At the close of its last fiscal year Louisville & Nashville had a net working capital of $44,000,000, in which was included $15,198,000 of cash on hand. The profit and loss balance at the close of the fiscal year totalled $31,246,800, which was equivalent to over $50 per share of capital stock outstanding. At the close of this fiscal year, it is estimated, the company's profit and loss balance should amount to over $37,000,000, which is equal to $61 per share of capital stock.

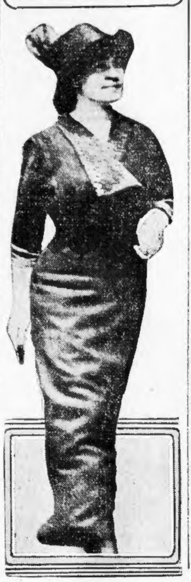
Snapshots Tell the Story

FIVE DOLLARS AWAIT HER



If You See Your Picture in the American It Means $5 Cash for You.

It all depends upon the point of view.

Look at the picture here printed. This was taken this week in the shopping district by an AMERICAN "Style" photographer.

By any stretch of imagination could this woman be called "frumpishly" dressed?

Yet our superior (!) New York friends tell us that "Boston's women dress like 'frumps.' "

The picture printed here is the AMERICAN'S "Exhibit B" in defence of Boston women. Could anything be more appropriate than the manner in which this woman is dressed for a shopping tour?

An unprejudiced observer who may, perhaps agree with the New York indictment, has but to casually stroll along Boston's busy shopping district any day—at any hour of the day—and render an impartial verdict.

Such an inspection will prove conclusively that what Boston artists say is based upon fact, and nothing but fact. Miss Laura Lee, the famous portrait painter, says: "Boston is the most truly fashionable city in the country."

What does the camera say? We shall see!

The AMERICAN staff photographers will be stationed all day today at the corners of Boylston and Tremont, Boylston and Washington, Washington and Summer, and Winter and Tremont steets.

Their cameras will catch the busy shoppers, all unconscious, and as a result some twenty shoppers will each be $5.00 richer, and this question will be settled beyond dispute.

One picture will appear each day in the evening AMERICAN and a whole page of pictures next Sunday.

If you have been shopping either Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday of this week, watch the evening and Sunday AMERICAN for your picture.

Any woman who recognizes her own picture in the AMERICAN, and comes to the office dressed as she was when the picture was snapped, will receive a check for $5.

There is no trouble or inconvenience about it; simply come to the office and get your money if your picture appears in the paper.

So watch the evening and Sunday AMERICAN, and when your picture appears don the costume worn when the picture was taken, come to the office and get your money. It's something for nothing—and five dollars is $5.

FLORENCE HAMEL, NASHUA GIRL IN PRINCESS RACE

By THE PRINCESS EDITOR.

Only three days more?

The race is almost over. But a lot may be done in three days.

The last coupon in the great Princess Contest will be published next Saturday, July 6. Candidates will be allowed one week from that date in which to gather and turn in all votes. No coupons will be received after 5 o'clock p. m. on Saturday, July 13. Any coupons showing postmark as having been mailed after that date will not be accepted.

There will be a new list of vote standing in next Sunday's AMERICAN, July 7. This list will contain the record of all votes received up to this morning at 11 o'clock, when the polls closed for this list.

Big rewards depend upon the determination of the winners in the Princess competition. There is the capital prize of the Princess Outfit. There is a list of 299 other prizes, all of value, which will be a delightful return for any slight effort expended.

All candidates and their friends are right up against the very end of the battle.

Saturday brings the final vote coupon.

One of the active fighters in the Princess Contest is Miss Florence Hamel, No. 26 Gilman street, Nashua, N. H.

SOON TO ANNOUNCE NEW TAX RATES; WILL BE HIGHER

The assessors of the various towns and cities in Massachusetts will in the next few weeks announce the tax rates for 1912 based on the valuation of April 1 last. Rates will be higher than last year.

The Selectmen of Nahant expect this year's rate will be $9, the same as in 1911, while town officials of Winthrop expect a rate of over $20, compared with $19.20 last year. The richest town in the Commonwealth is Brookline, with a valuation of $110,460,700, while the poorest is Gay Head, with a total valuation of only $42,194.

The towns having the highest tax rates are Merrimac, Saugus and Stoughton at over $25 a thousand, while the towns with the lowest rates are Orleans at $3, West Tisbury $5 and Dover $5.20.

The Trip to California Under Special Care

"You feel like sorting out and tying together the memories of this trip and keeping them separate from all other trips." A woman recently said this after a pleasant experience on a Burlington Route Through Tourist Car Excursion party to California. She traveled alone, but met many agreeable people on the car, which was in charge of a special conductor. This good-natured official was a well-informed, courteous man, who went all the way through with the party, looking after everyone's comfort and attending to all the little details of the trip. Thus a woman or child in one of these parties can travel with perfect safety and freedom from care. If you would like to know more about the Burlington's comfortable and inexpensive personally conducted excursions, please write me a postal and I'll send you maps, booklets, pictures, etc., by return mail. Hyde's Dislike for Mustaches Costs $400

LONDON, July 3.—James Hazen Hyde's aversion to mustaches has just cost him $400, but he believes that is preferable to seeing two sailors on his yacht wearing the face adornments that he particularly detests.

Mr. Hyde chartered the steam yacht Maund for a cruise in northern waters. He is now at Copenhagen. When he joined the yacht at Leith he found that two of the sailors were adorned with mustaches. He insisted that these decorations be removed. The sailors refused, and Mr. Hyde discharged them, having to pay them $400 in lieu of notice.

AMBASSADOR ARRIVES.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 3.—M. George Bakhmetieff, the Russian Ambassador and his wife are here and have taken up their official Summer residence.

DEATHS

JOHN A. PETTIGREW, the father of the Boston park system, is dead at his home, aged sixty-eight. A widow and four children, Mrs. George T. Sisson of Boston, Dr. Richard R. Pettigrew of Youngstown, O., Mrs. Ralph W. Curtis of Boston and Mrs. George W. Hinkly of New York survive him. Mr. Pettigrew was the organizer of the Park Superintendents' Association and also a member of the Massachusetts Horticulture Society, Boston Florist Club, Boston Curling Club, Boston Bowling Club, Appalachian Club and Royal Arcanum.

BENJAMIN VAUGHAN, a veteran of the Civil War, and for many years prominent in the oil business, is dead at No. 57 Garden street, Cambridge. He was captain of the Sixty-first Massachusetts Regiment.

ELMER EASTMAN HARRIS, principal of the Oakdale Grammar School in Dedham, is dead at his home in that town, aged thirty-eight.

GEORGE S. SWIFT, former Mayor of Chicago, is dead in that city.

NEW PLANT FOR PAINE COMPANY

The Paine Furniture Company will begin in the early Fall the erection of a large ten-story fire-proof building on Arlington street extension, corner of St. James avenue.

The building will cost, including the price of the land, $1,100,000, and will be the most complete building of its kind in the city.

The six floors above the basement will be fitted up in an unique way for the display of furniture, draperies, rugs, upholstering and interior decorations. These several departments will be well represented.

From the seventh to the tenth floor, the manufacturing interests will be carried on, together with large spaces for warehousing purposes.

Every point will be carefuly studied to make the building thoroughly fireproof with the sprinkler system.

It will contain a complete power plant, including dynamos. Eight elevators will be installed, six for passengers and two for freight.

The material used in building will be a steel frame with light brick exterior and limestone facings. Densmore & LeClair, architects of the new building, may make some changes in the material before the work is begun.

The new structure will be a great addition to a locality that is rapidly becoming a great retail centre. It will be near the proposed Brookline Subway. Its frontage on Arlington street extension will be 271 feet with a depth of 100 feet and will comprise in all 286,000 square feet or approximately seven acres.

There will be three main entrances.

While the actual work will be begun this Fall, it is not expected to have the structure completed before January, 1914.

The Paine Furniture Company began business seventy-seven years ago in a small place on Market street, this city. Then, after thirty-five years, they removed to their present site, where they have been for forty-two years. In their present building they have an area of 157,000 square feet, while in the building to be constructed on Arlington street extension they will have 287,000 feet.

Dear Sir:

My personal experience in the use of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment in the treatment of a severe affection of the skin warrants me in pronouncing them the most valuable remedies within my knowledge.

I say this after consulting eminent physicians and the use of many preparations. I have seen so many suffering from skin troubles that I feel it my duty to publicly recommend these gentle, effective, and economical remedial agents.

Sincerely yours,

A. Walters

ALL KINDS OF FUN AND SPORTS ON THE FOURTH

Dame Boston has nominated "Safe and Sane Fourth" for her celebration candidate on a Progressive ticket.

In other words, tomorrow's patriotism is to find vent in exercises, parades, flowers, music, pageants, dancing, water carnival, athletics and such.

There will be evening fireworks set off by experts.

There will be free ice cream soda, moving picture shows, ferry rides and other free fun for the children. There will even be free peanuts in Roslindale.

The official program arranged by the city is elaborate. If the weather interferes the celebration is postponed to Saturday.

It is hoped, by safe and sane entertainment and by close restriction on fireworks and explosives, to keep the "day after" list of casualties very low.

The city and State regulations forbid revolver firing and use of large firecrackers. District bonfires are allowed in Boston under police supervision.

The program for the city celebration, as sent out by John F. Dever, Director of Public Celebrations, is as follows:

10 a. m.—Reading of Declaration of Independence from balcony of old State House, State street, by Edward J. Rowen, of High School of Commerce, in Continental costume. (Repeated later in Faneuil Hall after oration.)

10:30 a. m.—Oration exercises in Faneuil Hall. Public invited. No tickets required. Joseph C. Pelletier, orator; Rev. Roger Sawyer Forbes, Chaplain, First Parish Church, Dorchester. Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, presiding.

9 a. m.—Military, naval, civic and feature parade in Roxbury. Start from Huntington avenue and Tremont street.

10 a. m.—Distribution of flowers and flags, by Floral Emblem Society, on Boston Common.

2 to 6 p. m.—Children's festival, Franklin Park: Flag procession, gymnastics, games and dances; "Country Fair," with special features, including Punch and Judy, peanuts, acrobats, lemonade, dancing, etc.; ice cream and cake to participants; balloon ascension and parachute descent, 3:30 p. m.; "Pageant of Patriots," by Boston Social Union, 3:45 p. m.; 4:45 p. m., patriotic demonstration, with procession of pageant performers, children with flags, committee, officials and all spectators. Singing, "colors," salute to flag; music, Cericola's Band.

3 to 6 p. m.—Outdoor folk dancing and music, Castle Island, and children's entertainment. Program arranged historically to indicate development of the country.

Ice cream and cakes and free boat rides between City Point and Castle Island for children taking part in the program, which will take place inside old Fort Independence, made into a theatre for the occasion.

8 p. m.—Water carnival—Charles River Basin: General illumination of basin and vicinity; illuminated parade of motor boats, canoes, rowboats and barges; floating concert by band stationed on moving boat to be kept under way along shore; grand display of fireworks by American Fireworks Company; music First Corps Cadet Band, John F. Fielding leader.

8 a. m.—City athletic meet, under the direction of Municipal Athletic Association, Boston Common, near Charles street. Events: 100-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, 1 mile run, running broad jump, running high jump, relay race.

9 a. m.—Hurling and football, Boston Common, corner Beacon and Charles streets.

9 a. m.—Rowing regatta, conducted by New England Amateur Rowing Association, Charles River basin.

10 a. m.—Veteran firemen's playout, Boston Common.

10 a. m. and all day—Gaelic games, Neponset playground.

10 a. m.—Football, Dorchester town field.

11 a. m.—Hurling, Commonwealth Park.

12 noon—Sailing regatta, conducted by Interclub Yacht Racing Association. Start off Marine Park, City Point.

4 p. m.—Swimming matches, foot of Berkeley street, Charles River basin.

Also athletics, baseball and swimming in programs of local or district celebrations.

East Boston—Children's Field Day, Wood Island Park, starting at 10 a. m., and continuing all day; athletics and games; general entertainment; clowns, Mutt and Jeff, etc.; refreshments for children noon; evening band concert.

Orient Heights—Band concert at 8 p. m., new park off Saratoga street; fireworks.

Roslindale, Mt. Hope, West Roxbury and Germantown—Joint program. 8:30 a. m., Washington street playground. Distribution of flags to children, flag raising and reading of Declaration of Independence. Oration. Open air vaudeville. Distribution of ice cream and peanuts; 10:30 a. m. and 3:00 p. m., baseball, Pierce Field; 7:45 p. m. band concert, and 9:00 p. m. local fireworks, Washington street playground. Barrington-Sargent's Ninth Regiment band, W. A. Barrington-Sargent, leader.

Forest Hills—Midnight bonfire, Galvon's Field, on Bussey Farm; 8 a. m., parade of Horribles; 9 a. m., patriotic parade of children carying red, white and blue balloons instead of flags, followed by games and sports for children top of Weld Hill street, and baseball; ice cream served to children.

Jamaica Plain—The city gives the annual elaborate display of fireworks on Jamaica Pond in the evening, with a band concert at 8 p. m., by D'Avino's band.

South Boston—Children will be given tickets in the morning to three moving picture houses, and in the afternoon tickets good for ice cream or soda at designated drug stores. At 6 p. m. fireworks at Marine Park and concert by Post 26, G. A. R. band. This district also has full advantage of the general outdoor dancing entertainment in the afternoon at Castle Island.

MARJORIE MANNERS, BEAUTY ENGAGED TO LORD ANGLESEY

Handsomest Peer to Wed Marjorie Manners

Talented Amateur Actress, Daughter of Duke, to Become Bride of Lord Anglesey.

LONDON, July 3.—The Marquis of Anglesey, the handsomest peer in the land, is to marry Lady Marjorie Manners, who is the eldest daughter of the duke of Rutland.

Lord Anglesey, who is twenty-seven years old, succeeded his eccentric cousin in 1905, on the latter's death at Monte Carlo. He has an artistic nature, being devoted especially to music. It is said that his rent roll is more than $350,000 a year from Burton-on-Trent alone. He owns in all 40,000 acres. He used to live in London, with his mother, at Uxbridge house, St. James square, but he sold the house to Waldorf Astor last year.

Lady Marjorie Manners is the oldest of a trio of famous and talented beauties. She is two years older than her fiance. The three sisters, Ladies Marjorie, Violet and Diana Manners, are perhaps the most famous trio of amateur actresses in English society.

The future Marchioness of Anglesey, as a painter, excells her mother, the Duchess of Rutland, and her work has more than once been hung in the Royal Academy. Her singing is about the average. It is said King Edward used to admire her singing greatly.

SUNDAY'S AMERICAN

NAVAL OFFICERS HAVE TO SWIM

"How many naval officers can swim around a battleship without exhaustion?"

This question is to be incorporated in blanks for reports on inspections of ships in the navy. Also inspecting officers are to be asked what percentage of the officers and crew on a given ship can swim five minutes without exhaustion. For instance, how many officers on the warships now at the Charlestown yard could swim around the Argentina dreadnaught at the Rivadavia, whose length is 585 feet and beam ninety-eight feet?

The suspicion has been growing in the navy recently that many officers and men are not as proficient in swimming as they ought to be. This belief is founded on numerous drowning accidents. Swimming has been made a part of the regular course of instruction for enlisted men, and last month several midshipmen at the Naval Academy failed to get diplomas because they could not meet the usual swimming tests. It is proposed to make the swimming standard even higher in order to guarantee a naval personnel that can take care of itself in the water as well as on it.

CABINET MAKERS STRIKE IN LOWELL

LOWELL, July 3.—Cabinet makers numbering about 150 woent on strike today, demanding fifty hours a week instead of fifty-five hours as at present. The firms affected are Pratt & Forrest, Amasa Pratt Company, W. E. Holmes and C. M. Holmes. A notice posted in the shops of these concerns stated that the firms understood the men were dissatisfied with conditions, and added that the business would still be run under present management and hours will remain the same.

Never Travel Without Sanford's Ginger

It quickly checks stomach and bowel ills due to heat or sudden change of water, food and climate; dispels fatigue, nervousness and sleeplessness, knocks out cramps, pains, colds and chills, and wards off many a threatening ill.

RED SOX CRUCIAL TEST BEGINS WITH ATHLETICS TODAY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

FIGHTERS READY TO DEFEND TITLES IN RING TOMORROW

HERE'S CHANCE OF A LIFETIME

Who wants to see the World's Series Championship Games?

EVERYBODY!

Why don't they?

It's too expensive!

What's the "way out?"

The AMERICAN'S World Series Contest!

Here's a chance for twenty fans to see the championship games absolutely free—not a cent of expense.

You don't have to do anything but get votes in order to win one of these trips. The coupons which will be printed in the Evening and Sunday AMERICAN will be the only ballots. There is no subscription plan, no cost and no canvassing.

The contest does not begin until Saturday, July 13. You have ample time to line up your friends before the first vote appears on that date.

No Trouble to Enter Contest.

All you have to do to enter the contest is to fill out the nomination blank which is printed in an announcement in today's AMERICAN and mail it to the contest editor.

The nomination gives the candidates a credit of 1,000 votes, but, of course, only one nomination can be credited to any one person.

Send in your nomination today! Sign it yourself—or have a friend sign it—just as you please. It is all right for a candidate to nominate him or herself.

Everyone is eligible, boys, girls, men and women—Every One.

These trips are going to be particularly attractive this year, because it seems certain that our own Red Sox will be one of the championship contenders.

But if the Red Sox should "fall down," the offer holds good just the same, no matter what teams play or where the games are held.

Don't Let This Chance Go By.

Every live fan who is at all interested in old King Baseball should get busy right off the bat and send in a nomination blank. If, perhaps, you cannot go yourself, nominate a friend! Get in line early.

Don't stand on the sidewalk in a jam of people watching a bulletin board!

Travel from city to city in a Pullman train, all expenses paid and sit right down front when the great battles are being fought.

Use that nomination blank (printed on another page) NOW!

Lynn Society Plans Outing on Saturday

The annual field day of the Fr. Mathew Total Abstinence Society of Lynn will take place at Oak Island on Saturday with a classy card of sporting events.

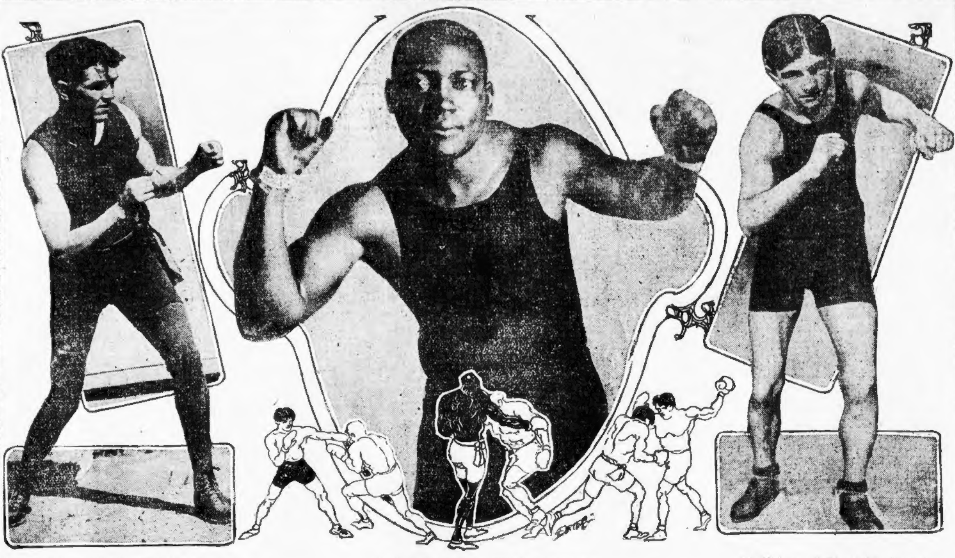
Three World's Ring Champions Who Will Stake Titles in Battles on Independence Day



Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion. Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion. Ad Wolgast, lightweight champion.

Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight title holder, will battle Tommy Dixon in a twelve-round encounter at Cleveland. Jack Johnson, the champion of all heavyweights, is engaged to defend his laurels from Jim Flynn, the "Pueblo Fireman," in a forty-five-round clash at Las Vegas, N. M. Ad Wolgast, the leader of the lightweight class, is to meet Joe Rivers in a twenty-round fight at Los Angeles, Cal.

Jim Flynn Does Not Appear to Be in Class With Champion.

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

EAST LAS VEGAS, July 3.—Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn have completed training for their forty-five-round championship bout, which takes place here tomorrow. It is particularly interesting to compare the difference in viewpoints of sports at a distance with those who have watched the men undergoing preparation. Away from here the average fight follower can not figure out to his own satisfaction that Flynn's prospects of winning are over-bright.

The fact that Johnson is the champion that has whipped the mighty Jeffries and many others of note through his various contests without turning a hair is the main basis for the argument.

It is remembered, too, that Johnson knocked out Flynn in a very one-sided contest not so very long ago and that there has been nothing particularly startling in Flynn's performances since that time.

The record, in fact, is what the sports at a distance take for their guide, and if work accomplished were to be the sole standpoint of reasoning, it would be easy to figure Johnson a top-heavy favorite.

But here is the other side as the Las Vegas sports place it before you, and I want to say right here that Las Vegas is largely a Flynn town.

I don't know that the patrons of pugilism hereabouts are going to flood the market with Flynn money, but they can certainly present forceful arguments to show that Flynn has a mighty big "look-in."

To begin with, it has been instanced that Johnson is enjoying himself to his full bent for two years, while Flynn has been pegging away at the game and adding to his store of knowledge in the fighting line.

Again, that Flynn has grown much bigger since he boxed Johnson last and that every ounce of his increased bulk is genuine fighting weight.

The plea is made that even if it is not certain that Johnson has gone back, it is beyond question that Flynn has improved in every way.

Flynn's training, say the Las Vegas sports, has agreed with him, while the suspicion exists that Johnson suffered torment in getting himself down to his fighting poundage.

Flynn shows that he has taken kindly to the grind, and has enjoyed every hand's turn he has done, by his sunny temper.

I for one wanted to satisfy myself whether Flynn's confidence was of the right kind—that is whether it was genuine self-reliance or merely the desperation which is felt by a man who knows that he has only one chance in a hundred and is going to make the most of it.

I was surprised to find that Flynn really likes his chances. There was not a suspicion of excitement about him as he discussed the prospect. He was cool and logical—according to his lights.

Instead of a man who felt he was pursuing a forlorn hope but was resolved to do or die, Flynn loomed up as a fighter who was somewhat overconfident.

If this were an infallible forecast, I have no doubt many of the sportsmen of distant cities would pack their grips at once and hasten to Las Vegas. This because the greatest delight of a fight patron's life is to be amongst those present when a king of the ring is dethroned.

I have not up to the present arrived at the conclusion that Johnson's race is nearly run. I am willing to admit that I consider Flynn a more formidable opponent for Johnson than before I came on the ground, but I still fail to regard the fireman in the light of a winner.

PILGRIMS HAVE QUAKERS HERE

The Pilgrims reached home this morning after their visit to New York where they dropped five games to the Giants. Manager Kling and his men are not discouraged, however, and this afternoon will go right after the Quakers who are here for a short stay.

Over in New York, the Pilgrims hit the ball good and hard in every game of the series, but no matter how hard and often they stung the ball, their twirlers could not seem to hold the sluggers on the Giants' lineup down.

Manager Dooin's men will find it a real task to suppress the Pilgrim sluggers at Walpole Street park today.

Alec Ross Leads in Play for Golf Title

Indications are today that the professional golf championship of this State is going to remain in the custody of some member of the Ross family, even though the present holder, Donald J. Ross of the Essex Country Club, is not in the event.

Yesterday his younger brother, Alec, who has also won the title on five occasions, led the field of twenty-nine starters at the Oakley Club, by six strokes. His total for the 36 holes was 145, while Tom McNamara, his nearest competitor, is but six shots behind him, with Nipper Campbell four shots behind McNamara.

All things considered, and most important of all, the "Ross luck," Alec should come through a winner.

P. M. Smith of the Oakley Country Club and the Harvard golf team, led the amateurs with a grand total of 158.

SAYLOR FLUNKS OUT OF FIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

Local boxing "fans" are wondering what mysterious illness prevented Kid Saylor of Indianapolis from meeting Matty Baldwin of Charlestown at the Pilgrim A. A. last night.

Saylor reported at the Arena early in the evening and appeared ready to battle with Baldwin. After hearing of what Baldwin did against Murphy several weeks ago, the Indianapolis boy began to feel queer.

Saylor finally told the directors of the club that he was ill and that he would be unable to fight. They became worried and asked him what the matter was. "I'm just sick," replied the boy from the West.

The announcement was then made that Matty Baldwin and Eddie Murphy would meet at the Arena at the next show, which which take place on Tuesday evening, July 16.

The two preliminaries were run off last night. Johnny Gallant of Chelsea and Eddie Mack of Beachmont fought eight rounds to a draw, while Joe Nelson of Lawrence knocked out Jerry Gaines of Cambridge in four rounds. This was all the fighting there was, however, but the boys were satisfied as they got it all for nothing.

WAGNER OUTCLASSED BY JOHNNY COULON

NEW YORK, July 3.—The bantam champion, Johnny Coulon of Chicago, completely outclassed Joe Wagner, a local bantam, in a ten-round bout here.

In the semi-final bout of ten rounds between Bobby Wilson of Utica and Battling Hurley of Passaic, N. J., Wilson more than met his match and was easily defeated.

Two New Twirlers Sign Up with Grays

PROVIDENCE, July 3.—Two new pitchers have been added to the staff of the Providence Baseball Club, Jimmy Dygert reporting while Tex Covington is expected soon.

Covington is the giant right-hander who pitched against the Grays in the exhibition game with Detroit at Rocky Point a few weeks ago.

Joe Rivers Expected to Give Ad Wolgast a Hard Battle Tomorrow.

By CHARLES F. EYTON.

Famous American Referee.

The world's two premier lightweights have, like true patriots, tendered their services for a red-blooded celebration of the Nation's birthday.

They will attempt to decorate, in one of the nation's colors at least, the ring of the Vernon arena tomorrow afternoon, when they will battle for the world's lightweight championship and some emoluments in the way of cash.

There are several very interesting and unusual phases in the coming melee that I will try to analyze for the benefit of the Queensberry "bugs."

Some of the angles which are open to comment are as follows:

Which boy has the more science, which is the more rugged, which is the more natural fighter, and which of the pair can hit the hardest.

To sift this mess of trouble, let us first take up the argument from a purely scientific standpoint. Immediately, everybody arises and cries that there is not much argument about this question, that Rivers is undoubtedly the more clever, that Wolgast has never made any claims to being clever.

All of which MAY be true, but I wish to go on record as saying, and I believe that the fracas of July 4 will bear me out, that there is little to choose between the two in this respect.

SOX PLAY TWO WITH ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—The Red Sox and Athletics are out for blood in today's double-header, which will show the fans all over the country just how the two top teams in the league shape up at this stage of the race for the pennant.

Connie Mack has Bender and Coombs groomed to the minute for today's pastiming, for he wants to get the jump on the top-notchers right at the start of the important series carded. Jake Stahl, however, hasn't any notion of letting the Mackmen do any percentage fattening at the expense of the Sox.

Joe Wood Ready.

With Joe Wood flashing them over at the top of his form and Buck O'Brien prancing about ready to goin and give fight to the Mack sluggers, Banker Jake is confident he will have some mighty good news for Boston fans tonight.

Philadelphia folk are ready to eat, talk and live baseball for the next few days and the ball park will see some big crowds. The fans here believe the crafty Connie has at last got his machine into working order and are pulling hard to have him make a killing.

The Mackmen figure somebody will have to stop the Sox and Baker and the rest of the sluggers might as well get out their war clubs now and get to work. Today's clashes bid fair to be fought with all the stubbornness of a World's series.

Stubborn Clashes Due.

The Red Sox are breezing into town with a great June record behind them and every man on the team playing the game of his life. The little setback at the hands of New York hasn't worried them a bit. They've got to lose a game just once in a while, they figure, or baseball would degenerate into a mathematical science.

Connie Mack's slab artists will have to be in prime condition today if they expect to stop the Sox from pounding the ball out of the lot. Each team wants those two games today and there is bound to be some tall clashing before the bats are packed away late this afternoon.

LAY STONE FOR NEW PARK ON SATURDAY

NEW YORK, July 3.—The corner-stone of Eggets Field, the new park of the Brooklyn National League Baseball Club, is to be laid next Saturday morning, July 6. All Brooklyn "fans" have been invited to send their autographs to be placed therein. Three Brooklyn clergymen will make addresses.

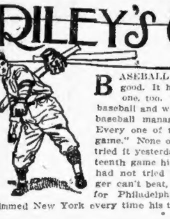
RILEY'S COLUMN



BASEBALL is an uncertain game. That's why it's good. It has one certainty—only one. It's a funny one, too. That is, a newly married man cannot play baseball and win games in the major leagues. Big league baseball managers are clever, but really sentimental. Every one of them have tried to beat the "marriage game." None of them has ever succeeded. Jake Stahl tried it yesterday, and gave the Yankees, 9 to 7, the fifteenth game his team has played with them. If Jake had not tried to butt against the only game a manager can't beat, he would probably have left last night for Philadelphia with the remarkable record of having trimmed New York every time his team met the Yankees this season.

* * *

JAKE has five pitchers whom he believes to be in form to pitch championship baseball. They are: Wood, O'Brien, Hall, Bedient and Collins. Wood has had the marriage bee in his head once in awhile, but it never bit him; O'Brien is a confirmed bachelor; Hall was "stung" last fall but entered into the sedate state sufficiently far in advance of the season to recover before the league year opened; Collins fell for it just before the training season, and is just beginnng to pay attention to the great National game, and that leaves—Bedient.

* * *

THIS young lad Bedient, who was the the baseball "find" of the year, was standing 'em all on their heads until last Saturday. At that unfortunate moment—unfortunate for everybody but Mr. and Mrs. Bedient—the youngster hurried off and married. Jake Stahl is usually credited with being an intelligent man. We'll take it all back. We "tipped Jake off" yesterday that he ought to be a good fellow and not ask Bedient to pitch his turn yesterday. Jake wouldn't take the tip. Bedient pitched and—the Yankees won.

* * *

YOUNG BEDIENT — the "pitching marvel" of 1912—has faced "Home Run" Baker, Ty Cobb and all the other clouters without losing his head, and beat 'em; he has walked into baseball games with the bases full and none out and kept his nerve to the finish; he is the most methodical, studious, careful and ambitious youngster we have ever seen break into big league company in pennant form his second year out. But—he was married, whereupon the measly Yankees hammered his delivery everywhere and anywhere, and piled up four runs before Jake collected his wits and removed Bedient, substituting Pape. It was too lae.

* * *

WITH all due regard for Mrs. Bedient and Mr. Bedient and Jake Stahl, and marriage, all we have to suggest is that the only safe time for baseball romances is in winter. Good luck to the "newly-weds," and let Jake Stahl simmer in his stupidity. It's his fault.

But Bedient will "come back."

AMERICAN TEAM MAKE PROTESTS

STOCKHOLM, July 3.—There is much bickering and fault-finding among the members of the American Olympic team.

In the first place, protests are being made again the drawing for heats, in which some of the best of the Americans must compete against each other.

The results of these heats will eliminate some of the fast men who came here on board the Finland, and therefore, in the finals America cannot be expected to be represented by her greatest strength as to point winners.

The American athletes are also dissatisfied with their accommodations. Owing to the fact that some of them could not get proper rest on board the Finland, their request to occupy rooms ashore, as the representatives of other Nations are doing, was granted. The rooms, however, did not suit, but the trouble was soon settled to the satisfaction of the athletes.

J. A. Howard of Winnipeg College, the negro member of the Canadian team, is being heavily backed to win the 200-meter dash. A syndicate is betting the money on him

The training of the athletes was interfered with somewhat yesterday by a drizzling rain, which softened the ground. The Americans had their first opportunity of practicing on the Stadium tracks, and in the morning nearly all the trackmen turned out in the presence of a large number of spectators. In the afternoon the runners, weight putters and hammer throwers exercised on other athletic grounds.

AVENGER WINS PURITAN CUP

The Puritan cup, the big prize of the Eastern Yacht Club's annual regatta at Marblehead yesterday, was won in good style by the Avenger, owned by H. D Maxwell of New York.

This yacht also showed its heels to the Shimna, the entry of Commodore R. T Paine, 2d, in the Class D race for schooners, and cleaned up the big prize on a liberal time allowance.

All of the races brought out the keenest competition. This was the second time the Avenger has won the Puritan cup, having captured it once before under R. W. Emmons, 2d.

The Making of a Pretty Girl

—Her Hair, and How to Make It a Joy Forever—

A woman's glory—her hair.

By Margaret Hubbard Ayer

"I AM so ashamed of my hair," writes one of my correspondents. "All the family have beautiful hair, but I only have a few straggling locks of a nondescript color. Will you please tell me what I can do to make my hair grow and to change the color of it?"

Be sure, my dear girl, that I am not going to tell you anything that will change the color of your hair, because this is the sad fate of the girl who was just about as you must be, with a small handful of brown hair that went well with a pair of beautiful brown eyes. But alas, the brown hair didn't suit the young lady, so she decided one day that she would give it a little life. To "liven the hair up" is one of those nice ways people have of saying that they are not dyeing their hair. So my little brown girl applied some henna to her hair and went and sat out in the sun until it dried.

Henna is a red paste made of powdered henna leaves and water, and is guaranteed to turn the hair reddish, then red, then redder, and finally purple, and other gay and festive colors

That is the unfortunate part about livening up the color of your hair. You never know quite where you are going to end.

My little brown girl was as pleased as Punch to see the reddish glint in her brown hair, and many of us were foolish enough not to realize that she had touched it up, so we said, "How nice your hair looks!"

Delighted with the result, she went and applied more henna, and sat out in the sun agoin.

A Prismatic Effect

I emphasized the fact that she sat in the sun, because that quickened the process. Soon her hair was a brilliant red, and as she struggled to lighten up the dark roots and ends of the hair somewhere the same color, she was tempted to try a quicker method and to use peroxide.

"Well, in a very short while she went through all the colors of the rainbow, ending up with distinctly purple locks streaked with a slightly greenish tinge.

Now, the little brown girl was very clever, and when she saw what she had done she frankly said: "I have made a fool of myself; I dyed my hair. I will never do it again."

Of course, every one knew she had dyed her hair, but I have met only two women in my whole life who admitted they did so I think she deserves praise. After months of work the hair eventually was restored to its original color. The restoration might have been helped with more dyes, but the hair was in bad condition anyhow, and it was eventually decided to cut off the greater part of it and wait patiently until it grew out its natural brown color.

During the hair dyeing process my little girl had been a source of real humiliation to her family and her hair had been an eyesore to all who looked at her, because she had the clear, olive complexion that went with her own color of hair, and, of course, once the scarlet locks appeared she had to paint and powder in order to overcome this ghastly looking complexion.

The minute you do anything to your hair to change the color of it you have to aid your complexion, which was intended to go with the original color. That is why the girl with dyed hair never looks quite respectable.

Hair that is touched up is never healthy, and the bleached or henna tresses become very dry and brittle, lose their natural wave and the gloss, which is the chief attraction of healthy hair.

Don't Touch It

If my correspondent wants better and healthier hair she must discard the idea of touching it up. There is only one thing in the world to lighten up hair naturally, and that is sunlight and fresh air. Go about just as much as you can with your hair loosened and flowing after you have washed your hair, be sure and dry it in the sun and never wash your hair on a cloudy day, as the difference in color will be perceptible.

Girls with drab hair should be very careful about keeping it clean, and all the drab shades should be washed much oftener than the deeper colors. If you are subjected to much dust during the course of the day in your home work or in business, shampoo the head once a week in Summer time, and about once in two weeks in Winter time. A good shampoo is made of small pieces of toilet soap that are left from the big cake and that are so hard to use up. Keep them in a little box or bag until you have a good quantity, then boil them up in about four times the quantity of water, add a little borax or soda. When the soap and water cools, it will form a jelly, and this can be kept in preserving jars almost indefinitely for use in the weekly shampoo.

Where the hair is very heavy, braid it in two braids before shampooing. Rub the soap very thoroughly in the scalp, and rinse in a great many waters. The rinsing is almost more important than the lathering. The girl with weak hair should try to get someone to give her a good scalp massage at least once a week, and twice a week if possible. Of course, the health of the hair depends very largely on the general state of health. If your system is not in order, if your stomach is upset, your liver sluggish, or you are overworked, worrying, and anxious, the hair will reflect these conditions almost immediately. It will lose color and vitality first and will flatten out and mat together. Then it will begin to fall out and all the tonics in the world won't be of any use until the circulation in the scalp is restored to its normal condition.

Massage Good

A good masseuse will manipulate the scalp, moving the skin of the scalp but not rubbing the hair. The fingers must be pressed deep into the flesh, and the scalp must be made to move beneath them. The pores of the scalp become clogged, just as do the pores of the face and back, and these pores must be emptied before the natural secretions can nourish the hair again. One can do a great deal for one's self in the way of scalp massage, but it is really better, if possible, to spend a little extra money and have this done by a thoroughly competent person.

Now that we are in the midst of the bathing season, I want to warn all you girls against the promiscuous use of brush and combs in dressing rooms. Scalp diseases of all kinds are transmitted in this way. I know that the dainty and fastidious girl only takes such a comb thoughtlessly and because she doesn't know what else to use. The same warning applies to combs in any public place, and it cannot be insisted on too strongly.

Here are some valuable rules given by Miss Ayer for the care of the hair:

"Hair that is touched up is never healthy.

"Girls with drab hair should be very careful to keep it clean.

"Shampoo the head once a week in the Summer.

"The health of the hair depends largely on your general health."

It's a Hard Life

NO. 8—ANOTHER GREAT IDEA FAILS.

By WEX JONES

I WAS sitting disconsolately by the roadside, not far from the Hotel Hatteras, when I picked up a piece of newspaper that had blown against the fence.

Glancing carelessly at it I saw the words "Money in Poultry."

Why hadn't I thought of that before?

Instead of trying to get a job working all Summer for some one else. I should be out doing something for myself. Chickens—that was the thing. All I needed was a few chickens and a place for them to lay their eggs in, and there I'd be making money for myself—at least the chickens would be making it for me.

Why, I'd be an employer.

Then and there I resolved that in some way or other I would accumulate a herd of hens and sell strictly fresh eggs at top of the market prices. The only problem was getting the chickens. It would be against my principles to rob a hen roost, so I decided that the next best job I got I would ask payment in chickens.

I walked along the road and soon came to a small house.

"Got a job for me?" I asked the owner when he came to the door.

"What can you do?" he replied.

"I can play baseball," I told him.

"What position?"

"I used to fling for our college team," said I. "They used to say I was the best college flinger in America."

"Can you chop wood?"

"Sure I can chop wood," I answered. "Show me the wood and I'll mighty soon chop it into matches."

'Twas a hard job getting away with that wood, but I finally managed it. I had no idea how much a live chicken was worth.

However, I decided that the work I had done was worth two chickens, so when the man came out I showed him the wood, and, to his question of how much I wanted, I said I'd take a couple of hens.

"What?" he roared.

"It's worth two hens, isn't it?" I said.

"Worth it! Do I understand you to say you will take hens in payment for this work?"

"That's just what I mean," I replied. "Would two be too many?"

"Too many! Ha! ha!" The owner laughed loudly. "Wait here," he continued. "Don't go away, please don't go away until I come back."

While he was gone I began to figure. Fresh eggs, 5 cents each. Two hens, two eggs a day. Two eggs a day, 10 cents a day. So at that rate if I had 100 hens I would have a clear income of $5 a day—1,000 hens, $50 a day!

Soon the owner returned. He and his wife were driving a herd that appeared to contain 10,000 hens.

"Don't go away," he shouted to me. "You said you wanted to take away hens. Don't deny it. Here you are then. Take these."

"Yes, take them and take them right away," chimed in the man's wife. "We lose nearly $10 a day on them. They're the"——

"I didn't hear the rest of her remarks. I can sprint faster than sound can travel when I'm up against lunatics."

The Manicure Lady

"IT'S funny, ain't it, George," said the Manicure Lady, "how many folks that used to play baseball think they can play the game now?"

"I never gave the thing much notice," said the Head Barber. "When I was a kid I didn't play the game at all, and after I grew up I never had no time to go to games, so I guess the subject is kind of stale Why?"

"Oh, I was just thinking about an outing that the old gent and me went to the other day," said the Manicure Lady. "Brother Wilfred went along, too. Brother Wilfred is all the time declaring himself in, although I am sure that his decision to go to the game didn't make any hit with father. He looked at Wilfred kind of reproachful, like a pickerel looks at you when you are just dragging it over the side of the boat, and he sighed kind of pensive, but I guess down under that he feels kind of sorry for Wilfred, his only son and the only child of his that has never saw fit to make his own way in the world.

"Anyhow, George, the old gent dragged us all down to the outing; and I don't mean to say for a minute that I didn't have a good time, because I did. We went all the way out in a big touring car and stopped at Kernan and Callahan's, two old friends of the old gent. There was a ball game inside and a ball game out in the park, and you can imagine, George, how bored I was to see baseball out in the country after having saw so many games at the Fenway. The only player I seen in the whole bunch that showed any big league form was a good-looking chap named Billy Lennon. He acted like the real goods.

"Outings is all right, George, if you go to one of them shady dells like Hough's Neck, where there is a picnic grounds, but when it comes to attending a minor league baseball game I am against it; and besides, brother Wilfred got a black eye from Sam Duffy, the umpire, and when the old gent tried to interfere he got a black eye, too. The return trip was all to the arnica."

"I don't get a chance to go to no outings," sighed the Head Barber, a little wistfully

"Cheer up, George," replied the Manicure Lady. "You don't know what you miss."

Daysey Mayne and Her Folks

The Modern Substitute

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

IN days of old a fair maid wandered pensively to the woods, where rare birds sang to her of love, and the most delicate of flowers nodded sweet messages to her.

If she chose to recline on the velvet sward, it was velvet sward, without brambles or sticks or stones to punch her in the back.

Butterflies hovered near, and if there were such a thing as poison ivy, a granddaddy-long-legs or a chigger, the chronicles of love fail to reveal it.

If a fair maid wandered pensively into the woods these days, she would be devoured by insects or lost in the weeds. Elaine may still love Lancelot, but she can't tell it in the woods, all her attention being occupied in fighting bugs.

Visions of love, in a modern guise, come to many girls as they come to Daysey Mayme Appleton, who takes surreptitious peeps into the Promised Land while supposed to be putting clean paper on the pantry shelves.

She was perched on a round of a step-ladder, after having removed glassware and chinaware, with clean newspapers in her hands to replace those she had taken off.

She spread a paper over the shelf, found it didn't fit the corner, and had taken it up to crease it when her eyes fell on the words: "And her breast heaved with emotion, for Viola was not a girl to take such a breach of good manners lightly."

"It is past 10 now," said Daysey Mayme, to fortify herself against temptation, "and I must get this done, repuff my hair, get lunch, and go to a Mother's Meeting at 1."

Then she resolutely ceased the page to fit the shelf, and bent over to fit it in the corners, when she again read:

Stay Kind Sir, She Said

"He looked at her with his love at the white heat of anger. His eyes flashed, and he turned away. 'Stay,' she cried, 'I have not told ALL.' 'You have told enough!' he said, a flicker of contempt in his cold gray eyes. She gave a low moan, like some dumb animal in mortal anguish."

Daysey Mayme picked up the pickle jar and deliberately set it over the next sentence.

"I have a busy day ahead of me," she said, "and must not let anything interrupt. There's a suffrage——"

"'Suffer me to kneel at your feet,' sobbed Viola.'"

Daysey Mayme put a pile of soup plates over the rest of Viola's plea, and began to match every vegetable dish with its own lid.

"I have a suffrage meeting at 2," she resumed, "and an article on 'The Folly of Love' to read to the Man Haters' League at 4."

In putting the last lid on the last vegetable dish, a bare space was left in the paper, and these words seem to fairly fling themselves into her sub-consciousness:

"Leander paused. After all, Viola was only a weak, frail woman. Perhaps he had been brutal. The de Courtneys had always been stern with the women they loved.

Then Came—Hoof Beats

"'I have forgiven much,' he began, when a sound of horses' feet coming through the forests caused him to pause and turn a listening ear to the open window. Nearer and nearer, now so near he could tell that there was not one lone rider. There were two, three, four—ah, there were at least three score.

"He turned to the woman cowering at his feet, 'Ah,' he hissed between white lips, 'this is your work, you Devil!'

"He raised his gauntlet, something flashed through the air——"

Daysey Mayme gave a quick shove, and sent soup plates and vegetable dishes tumbling into one corner of the shelf. Hastily gathering up the paper she had so carefully spread out, she twisted her feet over the rounds of the step-ladder for a better hold, and was soon lost to the world.

Oblivious of the dishes that looked at her in round-faced astonishment, and the shelves that fairly yawned for clean papers, she read, and read, and read.

Lunch, her hair puffs and the Mothers' Meeting were forgotten, and when she had followed the woes of Viola to the bitter end the sun had set.

It was then Daysey Mayme came back from the Promised Land of Romance to her prosaic surroundings. Realising that it was too late for her to deliver her address on "The Folly of Love" before the Man Haters' League, she grew so angry at her weakness she smashed the soup tureen.

Kitchen Wrinkles

Serge, after constant wear, becomes shiny, and therefore loses its original beauty. If sponged with hot vinegar and pressed in the usual manner the shiny appearance will entirely disappear.

Try the brush when you are cleaning baseboards, window sashes, etc., and you will appreciate it.

Cress minced as fine as possible and mixed with mayonnaise makes a delicious sandwich.

If your cellar is damp, as it is apt to be in the early Spring, put a piece of unslaked lime in it. It absorbs the moisture and keeps the place sweet.

A Mysterious Disappearance

One of the Greatest Detective Stories Ever Written

By Gordon Holmes

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

Copyright, 1905, by Edward Clode.

"OH! that's chaff," he said. "But why the dickens did the police lock up the cabman—the only witness we could lay our hands upon? Why I myself questioned every cabman in the vicinity several times."

"Because he [illegible] drunk on the proceeds of the journey, and subsequently thought he was Phaeton driving the chariot of the sun. But, there, he will tell you himself. I met him yesterday morning outside of Holloway Jail, and persuaded him to come here tonight, provided he has not gone on the spree again with disastrous results.

The entrance of Smith—obviously relieved to see his master and the "tec" on such good terms—to announce the arrival of "Mr. William Marsh," settled any doubts as to the cabman's intentions, and his appearance established the fact of his sobriety. Three months "hard" had made the cab driver a new man.

Recognition was mutual between him and Mr. White.

"Hello, Foxey," cried the latter. "It's you, is it?"

"Me it is, guv'nor; but I didn't know there was to be a 'cop' here"—this with a [illegible] glance at Bruce and a backward movement towards the door.

"Do not be alarmed," said the barrister; "this gentleman's presence implies no trouble for you. We want you to help us, and if you do so willingly I will make up that lost fiver you received for driving two people to Putney the night you were arrested."

The poor old cabman became very confused on hearing this staggering remark. Up to that moment he regarded Bruce as the agent for a charitable association, and there was no harm, he told his "missus," in trying to "knock him for a bit."

He stood nervously fumbling with his hat, but did not answer. White knew how to deal with him.

Reassuring Him

"Sit down, Foxey, and have a drink. You need one to cheer you up. Answer this gentleman's questions. He means you no harm."

"Honor bright?"

"Honor bright."

"Well, I don't mind if I do. No soda, thank you, sir. Just a small drop of water. Ah, that's better stuff'n they keep in Holloway."

Thus fortified, Marsh had no hesitation in telling them what he knew. Substantially, his story was identical with the version given to Bruce by the ticket collector.

"Can you describe the gentleman?" said the barrister.

"No, sir. He was just like any other swell. Tall and well dressed, and talked in the 'aw-'aw style. It might ha' been yerself for all I could tell."

"Do you think it was I?"

Foxey scratched his head.

"No, p'r'aps it wasn't, now I come to rec'llect. He 'ad a mustache, and you 'aven't. Beggin' yer pardon, sir, but you 'ave a bit of the cut of a parson or a doctor, an' this chap wasn't neither—just an every-day sort of toff."

"Could you swear to him if you saw him?"

"That I couldn't, sir. I am a ture 'and at landwidge, but I couldn't manage that."

"Why?"

"Because that night, sir, I were as full as a tick when I started. Lord love you, it must 'ave poured out of me afterwards when I started fightin' coppers. Mr. White, 'e knows, I ain't no fighting' man as a rule."

"And the lady? Did you see her?"

"No, sir. Least ways, I seed a bundle which I took to be a lydy, but her face was covered up with a shawl, and she was lyin' 'eavy in 'is arms as though she was mortal bad. He tell'd me she was sick."

"Did he? Anything else?"

"No, sir."

"Are you sure it was a shawl?"

A vacuous smile spread over Foxey's countenance as he answered, "I ain't sure of anythink that 'appened that night."

"But were you not surprised when a man hired your cab under such peculiar circumstances, and paid you such a high fare?"

"No, sir. You don't know all wot goes on in kebs. Why, once crossin' Waterloo Bridge"——

"Never mind Waterloo Bridge, Foxey," put in the detective. "Keep your wits fixed on as much as you can remember of November 6."

"Where did he tell you to drive to?" went on Bruce.

"Just Putney. I was to drive my 'ardest. I recollect wantin' to pull up at the Three Bells, but 'e put 'is 'ead out an' said, 'Go on, driver. I am awfully late a[illegible]ady.' So on I went."

"Where did you stop?"

"I don't know no more than the child unborn. By that time the drink was yeastin' up in me. The fare kept me on the road e' wanted by shoutin'. When we pulled up 'e carries 'er into a lane. There was a big 'ouse there. I know that all right. After a bit 'e comes back and tips me a fiver. With that I whips up the old 'oss and gets back to the Three Bells. You know the rest, as the girl said when she axed the Bench to——"

A Hazy Memory

"Yes, we know the rest," interrupted Bruce, "but I fear you are not able to help us much."

"This isn't a five-pun' job, eh, guv'nor?" said Foxey, anxiously.

"Hardly at present. We shall see. Can you say exactly where you drew up your cab when the lady was carried into it?"

"Sure as death," replied the cabman, in the hope that his information might yet be valuable. "It was outside Raleigh Mansions, Sloan Square."

"We know that——"

"It seems to me, sir, as ye know as much about the business as I do," broke in Marsh.

"Were you in the Square or in Sloane street?"

"In Sloane street, of course. Right away from the Square."

"Not so very far away, surely."

Foxey was doubtful. His memory was hazy, and he feared lest he should be mistaken. "No, no," he said, quickly, "not far, but still well in the street."

"Were there many people about?"

"You could hardly tell, sir; it was that foggy and nasty. If the lydy 'ad bin dead nobody would 'ave noticed 'er that night."

"Did any one besides yourself see the gentleman carrying the lady into the cab?"

"I think not. I don't remember anybody passin' at the time."

"Did the gentleman keep your cab waited long at the curb before he brought the lady out?"

"It might 'a' bin a minute or two."

"No longer?"

"Well, sir, it's 'ard for me to say, especially after bein' away for a change of 'ealth, so to speak."

"Did not the lady speak or move in any manner?"

"Not so far as I know, sir."

"And do you mean to tell me that, although you had been drinking, you were not astonished at the whole business?"

"I never axes my fares any questions 'cept when they say 'By the hour.' Then I wants to know a bit."

"Yes; but this carrying of a lady out of a house in such fashion—did not this strike you as strange?"

"Strange, bless your' eart, sir. You ought to see me cartin' 'em off from the Daffodil Club after a big night—three and four in one keb, all blind, paralytic."

"No doubt; but this was not the Daffodil Club at daybreak. It was a respectable neighborhood at 7 o'clock, or thereabouts, on a Winter's evening."

"It ain't my fault," said Foxey doggedly. "Wot was wrong with the lydy? Was it a babduction?"

"The lady was dead—murdered, we believe."

The cabman's face grew livid with anxiety.

"Oh, crikey, Mr. White," he cried, addressing the detective, "I knew nothing about it."

"No one says you did, Foxey," was the reply. "Don't be frightened. We just want you to help us as far as you can, and not to get skeered and lose your wits."

Thus reassured, Marsh mopped his head and said solemnly:

"I will do wot lies in my power, gentlemen both, but I wish I 'adn't bin so blamed drunk that night."

"You say you would not recognize your fare if you saw him," continued Bruce. "Could you tell us, if you were shown a certain person, that he was not the man? You might not be sure of the right man, but you might be sure regarding the wrong one."

"Yes, sir. It wasn't you, and it wasn't Mr. White, and it wasn't a lot of other people I know. I think if I saw the man who really got into my keb, I would be able to swear that he was like him, at any rate."

"All right. That will do for the present. Leave us your address so that we may find you again if necessary. Here is a sovereign for you."

When Marsh had gone, Bruce turned to the detective.

"Well," he said, "if Mensmore were here now, I suppose you would want to lock him up."

"No," admitted White sadly, "the more I learn about this affair the more mixed it becomes. Still, I don't deny but I shall be glad to have Mensmore's explanation of his movements at that time. And so will you, Mr. Bruce."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Do You Know That—

Copper sulphate is often used for destroying the scum-like weeds in ponds. But precautions must be taken, for unless the right proportion of sulphate is used any fish which may be in the pond will be injured. The proportion of copper sulphate used in the ponds at Kew Gardens is one part to from 750,000 to 1,000,000 parts of water. Sulphate of copper in a pulverized state is placed in a porous bag and dragged through the water until dissolved. The water in St. James' Park, London, it might be mentioned, has for two Summers been kept free from scum by this method.

One of the great transatlantic steamship companies has determined to make use of the system of carrying boats on deck known as "nesting." Nesting requires a boat of special construction, for the standard lifeboat could not be nested above two, or at the outside three, deep.

Being Placid

WHAT A HOUSEWIFE HAS TO PUT UP WITH SOMETIMES

"WHERE was the wreck?" asked the man of the house when he came home to dinner and took a good look at his dismal wife.

"Don't try to be funny!" she begged. "I've stood a great deal, but that would be the last straw that would make me leave home! The reason I look like this is because I began the day firmly resolved to meet life placidly."

"I don't think I get you," ejaculated the man of the house.

"If you aren't placid you get wrinkles," explained the woman with the headache bandage and general disarray. "I read a most convincing article by a noted woman who said that the only way to keep young and good-looking was not to allow one's self to worry, always to be calm and unruffled and to allow nothing to disturb one's placidity. She said this state of mind exerted a tremendous force about one and enabled one to bend circumstances to one's will. It sounded easier than having to fuss and stew about. So after breakfast I began letting nothing annoy me."

"What happened first?" asked her husband.

"What a pessimist you are!" commented his wife. "Well, the cook got a letter in the early mail saying her sister was going to have all their relatives for a visit and she left on the spot. I had six women coming to lunch, but that made no impression on the cook.

A Muffled Tornado

"If you never tried to be calm when you were longing to hurl the furniture at some one," went on the man's wife, "there is no use trying to explain what was going on inside of me as the door banged after the cook. I turned to Selma, the second girl, and said beguilingly, 'You can get luncheon, I know—can't you, Selma?' Selma sniffed. She said she had been hired to do second work, not cooking, and if people hadn't any more regard for her rights than that she had her opinion of 'em, and please, she'd like to give a week's notice. Anyhow, she knew of a job that paid more.

"Still calming and smiling, I began to set the table myself and found holes burned in two of my best lunch napkins. By pounding my fists against the wall I managed to keep perfectly calm. I resolved that nothing material should disturb me. The grocery sent potatoes instead of tomatoes, the salad dressing curdled and I dropped a china dish and smashed it. Having no one but yourself to blame for an incident like that is perhaps the most trying thing than can happen to a woman.

"By this time my lips were stiff in their smile of calm placidity, but I was resolved to encourage no wrinkles. 'Everything will be all right, I know,' I cooed to myself when I burned the biscuits. 'I don't mind it in the least,' I assured myself when the first guest arrived before I had got out of my kitchen ginghams, and I ushered her into a parlor that wasn't dusted. 'It's of no consequence,' I said when I recalled that Sadie White, who was to be present, always had things done up to the last notch when she entertained and was horribly critical.

"The luncheon went off just as badly as it was possible for a luncheon to go. Then the dressmaker phoned that she had accidently dropped a bottle of glue on the hand embroidered silk crepe I had taken her for a dress and what should she do about it? She must have thought I was insane when I chortled, 'Oh, never mind. Don't worry. It will be all right!'

"Sadie White spent most of the afternoon telling about the wonderful luncheons she had gone to elsewhere in her life and explaining how she loved harmony in the home. That was just after she ostentatiously dusted off her hand, which she laid down on her chair arm. I beamed through it all. I was quite calm when another woman said she had seen a table cover just like the one I paid $10 for reduced to $1.90 at another store. I was also calm when Mabel called me to the phone and, in spite of hints that I had company, talked for half an hour, mostly about Sadie White, and then wondered why I made such wild answers to her remarks.

"I still moved serenely when the postman brought a bunch of bills just as the guests were leaving and Mrs. Grimp said, 'Oh, do you get bills in the middle of the month? How odd! Still, I suppose they keep sending 'em if one doesn't pay promptly.'

Still Smiling

"I went upstairs, still smiling, when they had gone and looked at myself calmly in the glass. As I looked I saw that in my hurry I had pinned the rat in my coiffure and totally forgot to cover it with my switch. My head looked just like a heathen idol's. And all those six women were doubtless at that minute giggling about it!

"Then my smile cracked. I threw the hair brush at a picture on the wall and smashed the glass. I kicked the rug into a ball and then kicked it some more. I yanked my dress off and tore it. I pounded the couch cushions and declared that I hated everybody and everything and I'd like to boil the cook in oil and throw the dressmaker and Sadie White in after her. Then I felt better. I haven't quite caught my breath yet, but the relief is tremendous. Being placid through trials is a fraud."

"Unless you were a nice, unimpressionable cement woman with stone trimmings," agreed her husband. "Break up a little more furniture and see if it doesn't revive you sufficiently to go down town with me for dinner."

Up-to-Date Jokes

Egerton L. Winthrop, at the end of one of the meetings of the Board of Education in New York, said, apropos of severity in the schoolroom:

"These over-severe teachers always remind me of an over-severe parson. He, at a dinner party during Lent, said to one of the guests, a famous raconteur:

"'My dear sir, as it is Lent—and a Friday to boot—would you mind if I asked you to confine your efforts exclusively to fish stories?"

Lucy gave it up, whereupon William said:

PINES RIVERBANK IS LOCATED in the most desirable part of REVERE, bordering the cities of MALDEN, CHELSEA and LYNN, affording transportation facilities in all directions nearly every minute in the day.

As the LOTS are LARGE, ranging from 4,000 to 8,000 square feet, one does not have to buy two or three upon which to place a house. Land rich for garden crops.

TO BOSTON 10 MINUTES (When the New Boston and Eastern R. R. Is Completed.) TO LYNN 5 MINUTES

The largest manufacturing industries in the East, we believe, are to be located in the vicinity of and in close proximity to "Pines Riverbank"—such as will demand hundreds and thousands of houses, assuring the purchaser of a lot here a profit upon the investment.

To our customers we make this statement:

We point with pride to Court Park, Winthrop, where we sold 176 lots in 24 hours, aggregating $140,000, and where the purchasers have averaged a profit of $500 upon every $25 invested; to Squire's Lakeside Terrace and Squire's Garden, Arlington, where we have sold $250,000 worth, nearly every lot to residents of Arlington, or Cambridge and Somerville, which the land adjoins; to Squire Park, where we have sold more than $50,000. As an investment or home proposition, the Pines Riverbank Land is in the same class as above, and we recommend it highly.

CAMBRIDGE
Values Steadily Increasing

SINCE the new subway was opened. This is a nearly new, well built, cement building, always rented to good, reliable tenants; near Harvard College. This building has 12 apartments, with bath, gas, hardwood floors, electricity and every nameable convenience; all outside rooms, insuring plenty of light; built for warmth in winter, having double air space in outer walls; built by the day, no expense spared in construction. Most of the tenants have been here for some time and are well satisfied. This building is a splendid investment for anyone, safety of principal and interest being assured. The interest is large, considering the amount invested. This is located in Old Cambridge. Will sacrifice this building for $37,500, as the money is needed for other purposes. I will sell this for a few thousand down, the balance to remain on mortgage. Look into this. It is a good proposition. O 944, Boston American.

A Bungalow Lot One Dollar A Week
AT BEAUTIFUL RIVERMERE
On-the-Concord

Rivermere is situated on the Concord River in North Billerica—an ideal spot for a bungalow site. The land fronts the river in its best and most beautiful part. Every lot is elevated above the river and all have river front privileges. The land is excellent for garden crops and there are many very successful chicken farms in this section. Boating, bathing and fishing free to all.

We stake our reputation of years on our opinion that land in Rivermere will double in value in a short time.

We base this opinion on the fact that this section is ideal for homes, that the big new Boston & Maine car shops built here have added hundreds of well paid men to the community, making the increase in population permanent, and desirable land at Rivermere is selling rapidly and building in this section is active.

Present prices as follows: Lots $30 upwards, $5 down, $1 a week; no interest, no taxes; 10 percent. discount for cash. Free deed in case of death.

Rivermere is the finest tract of land in Billerica and is the only land sale near the new Boston & Maine car shops suitable for homes. We wish to impress the readers of this paper with the fact that the Edward T. Harrington Co. never sells undesirable land under any circumstances and never offers for sale to its many customers and friends any land that will not (in the opinion of the company) increase in value. We wish to assure readers of this paper that this land at Rivermere is the best low-priced bargain we have ever offered them, and we assure the public that a chance like this will never come again in this vicinity.

How to Get There—DIRECTIONS: Take any Billerica car from either Sullivan or Harvard Square, stop at Jones' Corner, cross bridge to our office.

Randolph Farms

BUY A CHICKEN FARM $1.00 A WEEK

Hundreds of men who work for a living are paying for their homes by raising poultry for home food and the market. Money-making chicken farms are thriving in the suburbs of all manufacturing centres. The high prices of chickens and eggs give the working man with a little chicken farm an opportunity to raise food for his family and sell the surplus at a big profit. Randolph Farms is located on So. Main and Centre sts. in Randolph; electrics from Boston to Brockton pass the property; a few minutes' walk to depot, cheap fare to Boston, 5c. fare to Brockton and W. L. Douglas and Rice & Hutchins shoe factories. Chicken farms $100, $5 down, $1 weekly payments, 10% discount for cash, no interest; good soil for gardens and chickens. House lots $9 to $49, a few higher; $2 down, 50c. a week. Camp lot $9, $2 down, 50c. weekly. Free excursions Saturdays, 2:20 p. m., track 19, So. Sta.; Sundays, 12:25, track 19, So. Sta. EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON JULY 3, 1912

The Democratic Nominee and the Progressive Creeds

Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey, is the nominee of the National Democratic Convention for President of the United States.

The AMERICAN will support the Democratic nominee.

The AMERICAN, as a progressive Democratic newspaper, would have supported any progressive Democrat nominated at Baltimore.

The AMERICAN has not only been a progressive Democratic newspaper, but it has been a progressive Democratic newspaper in advance of the Democratic party and it will continue to be a progressive newspaper in advance of the party.

Whatever is progressive in the nominee of this convention and in the platform of this convention, this newspaper will endorse. For anything less than progressive in the nominee or the platform the AMERICAN will feel and express its regret and will endeavor to strengthen and amend the weakness in platform or in candidate as the campaign progresses.

Because the AMERICAN and its kindred newspapers are convinced that the only true Democracy is progressive Democracy.

The AMERICAN does not hesitate to say, and has already earnestly said that there were many things in the Baltimore convention far from progressive and far from Democratic. The spirit of the convention and its methods are made open to attack upon many lines, and, most of all, in the overriding by demagogy and other influences of the will of the majority which is the will of the people and the essence of Democracy. We have made, and shall continue to make, the improper methods and the undemocratic spirit of this Democratic National Convention and of the Republican National Convention a continuous and double-barrelled argument for the abolition of national conventions in both parties, and the substitution everywhere of direct nominations—preferential presidential primaries, which will do away with conventions and allow the people to choose all officers from President down, directly by their own will and their own ballots.

This is the essential lesson learned and the essential reform made necessary by the errors of both national conventions.

The circumstances and conditions surrounding the nomination of Governor Wilson furnish the amplest vindication of Champ Clark from the assaults and misrepresentations of Governor Wilson's friend Bryan. Because the very influences about which Bryan made his demagogic assault upon Champ Clark were identically the same influences which at the appointed time brought about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson.

There is one thing that is rankling in the hearts of Clark men and that is the false accusations or insinuations that have been made against Mr. Clark.

It was said by Mr. Clark's opponents that Mr. Clark's managers had made deals with the interests. Those insinuations were not only false, but they were not made in good faith.

A simple analysis of the vote will show that it was the States which the interests controlled that prevented Mr. Clark from getting the nomination and that it has been the determination of the interests to interefere at any cost with the nomination of Mr. Clark.

The States which Thomas Fortune Ryan controls were the States that instructed for Mr. Underwood. Those States were held at the time when their votes could have given Mr. Clark the nomination and they were released at the time when their votes could and did give Mr. Wilson the nomination.

Both Mr. Wilson and Mr. Underwood have had abundant money at their command, and it is well known that Mr. Clark made his campaign throughout the country and won the greatest number of delegates in the presidential primaries with a pitiful fund of a few thousand dollars contributed by personal friends.

To say that a man who has conducted such a campaign was or could be the candidate of the interests is not only an unjust and unworthy reflection upon a stainless public man, but is also a reflection upon the common sense and intelligence of the American people.

And to say that the nomination of Governor Wilson was finally made possible by the support of Taggart in Indiana and of Ryan in Virginia and Sullivan in Illinois and Tammany in New York is not a reflection upon Governor Wilson, but is an all sufficient vindication of the slandered Speaker of the Democratic House.

The one man upon whom the final support of the interests for Governor Wilson does reflect most directly and seriously and permanently is William J. Bryan.

Bryan just at the moment when the transfer of the New York delegates from Harmon to Champ Clark gave Champ Clark the majority of the convention votes and fully entitled him to the nomination—that moment William J. Bryan set out to defeat his noble, loyal friend, Champ Clark. Bryan brazenly declared that he would support no man voted for by New York and whose nomination was made possible by New York's vote; broke his pledged instructions from Nebraska, turned his votes to Wilson and halted Champ Clark's march to victory.

Mark the hypocrisy of Bryan.

The next day Tom Taggart, the most corrupt of all bosses, swung Indiana's vote to Wilson and turned the tide that finally made Wilson possible. And Bryan, sullen, inconsistent and insincere, sat silent and unprotestingly in his seat.

Yesterday it was the action of the New York delegation led by Congressman Fitzgerald of Tammany, which made Wilson's nomination certain. And Bryan, who had betrayed and defeated Champ Clark, as he said, simply because New York had voted for him, sat silent, sullen and insincere—without a protest—in his seat.

And when Roger Sullivan, whom Bryan had denounced as a traitor and train robber, swung the fifty-eight votes of Illinois and made Wilson's election sure, Bryan still sat without protest at a change of vote—sullen, silent and insincere to the end.

Whoever else may rise or fall in the fortunes of the last convention of the Democratic party, William J. Bryan comes out of it stained forever and stamped by his hypocrisy and his hates as a fraud and demagogue, false in language, false in profession and false in friendship as to party.

The real reason for Champ Clark's defeat was the reality and genuineness of his progressive Democracy.

While others theorized, Speaker Champ Clark struck, with force and deadly directness, at the root of the evil.

To the preachers of progressive Democracy he gave practical illustration of what he meant when he stayed at his post, and from his seat of authority as Speaker started the investigation of the Steel Trust and the Money Trust representing not hundreds of millions, but thousands of millions of dollars—an inconceivable power of money.

The investigation of the Steel Trust and the Money Trust sent J. Pierpont Morgan and W. E. Corey to Europe, where they have found it convenient to stay, and the vast forces which Morgan and Corey controlled, with the kindred interests which surround them, made up their minds that whoever was nominated at Baltimore he must not be, and should not be, the great practical Progressive in the Speaker's chair at Washington.

It does not follow and we do not believe that Governor Wilson made any deal or had any understanding with the interests which finally secured his nomination.

Upon this belief in Governor Wilson's innocence of any connection with these evil forces we are going to support him in this election.

But while we do this we need not forget to honor and to eulogize that great Missouri Democrat who was by these interests made the martyr for his real progressive Democracy.

A Rocket That Never Comes Down

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I THINK it wud be a good scheme, Ma sed to Pa last nite, to give Bobbie a littel work to do during his vacashun. The mind must never remain too inactive, Ma sed. Missus De Gaines toald me so.

Who mite Missus De Gaines be? sed Pa.

Missus De Gaines is a vary nice woman that I met the other day, sed Ma. She had her littel boy with her, & a fine, manly littel fellow he was. He has jest finished his school term, the saim as Bobbie, & she is going to maik him work this Summer at sum useful trade. Her husband is a arkitek, & she is going to have her little boy Gerald be a arkitek too.

Indeed, indeed, sed Pa. Do you suppose Gerald will reely enjoy arkitekking?

I doan't know, but I think it is a good idea for a yung mind to be kept active.

The trubbel with yung minds, Pa sed, is that they are too active. They learn enuff during the 8 or 9 months that they are at skool to keep thare fathers & mothers worried during the 3 or 4 months that they are having thare vacashun. Why doesnt she let her little boy Gerald go out in the country & help the hired men making hay? sed Pa.

Then he wud get lazy, sed Ma. I doant want littel Bobbie to git lazy. I was thinking that you mite git littel Bobbie a good job as a office boy down to the paper, Ma sed, so he wuddent git lazy.

Then Pa began to laff. He laffed so hard that Ma began to look kind of scared, the way she looked the time I choked on a dumpling. What are you laffing so hard about? sed Ma.

About the office job, sed Pa. You want Bobbie to git a job as a office boy so he wont git lazy. Ha Ha Ha. That is the best wheeze that I have heard for a long time, Pa sed.

Wife, sed Pa, I doant blaim you much for saying what you have jest sed. But did you ever see a bunch of office boys learning how to keep from beeing lazy? I wish you cud sume down to the paper sum day & see a bunch of them.

A office boy, sed Pa, is the most misterious thing to me that thare is in all the world of boys. Wen bizness is slack for a cuppel of minnits, Pa sed, thay are prancing all oaver the room like a lot of yung colts in a pasture, showing how Speaker hits & how O'Brien pitches & how somebody else bats. They waste enuff energy in that two minnits, Pa sed, to bild a new bridge acrost to Chelsea. But wen one of the editors hollers "boy!" said Pa, a lull cums like the lull just beefoar the storm. After a littel while one of them gits up & drags his weary limbs oaver to the editor's desk, & by that time the editor has changed his mind & doesnt need him.

Doant tell me about making littel Bobbie a office boy, Pa sed. Thay are cunning littel devils, but I wish I had git a dollar a year for all the work that each of them doesnt do, excep the week beefoar Christmas.

So I doant have to work this Summer. I have stood by Pa a lot of times, so he showed his grat-itude by standing by me.

What Socialism Really Is

Written for the American by Dr. C. H. Parkhurst.

WHEN a considerable number of people combine in the enthusiastic support of any doctrine, religious or economic, it is safe to assume that there is something in it, more or less, that is worth standing for and saving.

They may misunderstand their own ideas and give to them a mistaken shape, but, even so, it is reasonable to suppose that, however much of error there may be, there is mixed with it an element of truth; and, if there is, it is a mistake to oppose it, for truth will bear any amount of crushing without crumbling.

It is in some such way as this that it is necessary to look upon what is known under the name of Socialism.

Socialism is a difficult thing to talk about intelligently, for to no two persons does it carry the same meaning; but it is safe to say as much as this—that it is a policy devised by the discontented for correcting social maladjustments and for improving conditions of social inequality.

Whether the methods proposed for accomplishing this are the wisest and the best is a question by itself, but in regard to the object which those methods have in view there can be no question.

The poor are too poor, and the rich are dangerously rich.

The poor do not have all that righteously belongs to them, and the rich have more than they have the disposition righteously to handle.

American aristocracy is an aristocracy of wealth, and that means undeserved degradation to those who have little and artificial exaltation to those who have much.

Every man is entitled to a chance to become the best that there is in him.

Under the existing state of inequality the poor man is defrauded of that right.

The impatient discontent fostered by that fraud is the genius of Socialism.

Now, if we see fit we can criticise methods adopted or proposed for righting the wrong, but the wrong is there, and it is unfair and also imprudent to pass strictures upon Socialism in such a way as to leave the impression that while criticising Socialistic schemes we are indifferent to the wrongs to which these schemes are designed to bring relief.

Fully in line with the foregoing are the following words spoken by Bishop Lines at the Episcopal Diocesan Convention, recently held in Newark:

"A good many people are joining in the cry against Socialism who know very little about it. No such movement can have gained its strength and hold upon many people without expressing some need and some truth which right-minded men are bound to recognize. It is a means which a great many people in the harder places of life are using in their contention against privilege, and the wise course is for those who bear the Christian name to try to understand the movement, and to get into as friendly a relation as possible with those who are finding in Socialism their religion."

Quite as pronounced was the declaration made by the Bishops of the Methodist Church at their recent Conference in Minneapolis.

It is an omen of good that the Christian churches are coming to feel more keenly, and to confess more openly, the relation of accountability in which they stand to people in the everyday secular concerns of life.

Christianity, as Christ lived it and taught it, seems to have had its strongest hold upon those in humble circumstances, and to have been less appealing to the educated and well-to-do.

It is therefore pleasant to observe that the thought of the church, as expressed in the two conventions just mentioned, is giving a wider expansion to its interests and sympathies and taking upon itself the concerns, burdens and deprivations of men without regard to social distinction.

The Governors of five of the New England States have agreed to edit the Sunday AMERICAN, one each week during the five weeks beginning July 14.

Governor Plaisted, who is to be the first to take editorial charge, was to have been editor next Sunday. On account of his detention at the Baltimore convention, however, the series will be postponed one week. The Governors will take their turns as editor in this order:

On Sunday, July 14, Governor Frederick W. Plaisted of Maine.
On Sunday, July 21, Governor Robert P. Bass of New Hampshire.
On Sunday, July 28, Governor Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts.
On Sunday, August 4, Governor Aram J. Pothier of Rhode Island.
On Sunday, August 11, Governor John A. Mead of Vermont.

IN inviting the Governors of New England to supplant the regular editor on the five Sundays named, the AMERICAN suggested that each prepare a leading editorial on some subject of vital interest to the State he represents, and to select as far as practicable the news to be presented on that day.

These five "Governors' Editions" will present to the people of the New England States the most important matters that concern the general welfare.

One Governor regards good roads as a most important subject for discussion, and another public regulation of railroad lines serving New England.

Governor Bass in accepting the AMERICAN'S invitation writes:

To interest the Governors in New England journalism is certainly a new departure and one with which I thoroughly sympathize. The AMERICAN has always co-operated with the men responsible for the progressive movement in my State and it is always a pleasure for me to co-operate with it in so far as I can.

Governor Foss in his note of acceptance writes:

I shall be very glad to furnish the leading editorial for the Sunday AMERICAN of July 21, and will probably take as my subject "Public regulation of the railroad lines serving New England; why past Legislatures have refused to grant it, and how to get it this Fall."

Governor Pothier writes:

My contribution may not be a message to the citizens of New England, but I will try to bring to their attention matters which I shall consider of interest to them.

Governor Plaisted writes:

I should be pleased to comply with the request contained in your letter.

Governor Mead writes:

I assure you it will be a pleasure to accept your invitation, and upon my return to Rutland (Governor Mead wrote from Chicago), I will be pleased to give the matter attention. We will arrange the subject then.
